MERCHANTS HEAR TRADE DAY REPORT

Ten or twelve members of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce attended the business session set for Wednesday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock at the Armory. The consensus of opinion was that fifty odd merchants participating in the trade stimulating event last Saturday were very much pleased with the stunt. Not only did the idea work to advantage of selling more goods for cash, it had the added effect in some instances of cleaning up old accounts and in bringing current accounts to an early close.

Sentiment was unanimous to sponsor another such stunt, not, however, in the near future. The idea will probably be carried out later this spring or early summer.

Rebate checks amounting roughly to forty per cent of the total will be mailed out this week-end.

President Lyle Malone appointed the following nominating committee which will meet in the near future to select a slate of officers to serve after February 15, 1931: Lee Bowman, Chairman; members, E. C. Matthews, C. E. Brenton, L. M. Stallcup, Ernest Harper, C. H. Denman, C. L. Blanton, Jr., and George A Lough. The list, according to Malone is representative of nearly all major business enterprises, both banks, newspapers and merchants being represented.

The Hospital Committee which recently set as its goal a membership of 90 firms or businessmen each pledging $1.00 per month for maintainance of a room in the Emergency Hospital, reported through John Powell that a total of $33 had been voluntarily subscribed and turned over to the institution. That amount was remitted in December. Since that time $4 more has been turned over to Mr. Powell, he stated before the meeting.

Powell stressed the fact that the committee had been relatively inactive. No personal effort had been put forth to reach the goal of 90 members. C. C. White as chairman of the Hospital Committee is absent, and the suggestion was made that another active chairman be appointed to fill the vacancy, and to put over the campaign.

S. E.MO ATHLETIC CONFERENCE FORMED

Poplar Bluff, January 14.—At a meeting held at Dexter last Saturday, of representatives of all six high schools holding membership in the Southeast Missouri High School Athletic conference, officers for the present year were elected, a football schedule for the fall of 1931 was arranged and important matters relative to association affairs were discussed.

C. C. Conrad, superintendent of schools at Charleston, was elected president of the association, George Loughead, superintendent of schools at Poplar Bluff was named vice-president and R. O. Hawkins, principal of the Jackson High School was elected secretary and treasurer.

High schools at Jackson, Poplar Bluff, Charleston, Dexter, Caruthersville and Cape Girardeau hold membership in the conference. The football schedules call for a game between each of the six conference schools. Rules of the Association are the same as those of the State High School Athletic Association.

An association track meet was authorized to be held next spring. The track at Southeast Missouri Teachers' College will be used if possible—otherwise the meet will be held at Charleston. A committee was appointed to select a date.—American Republican.

EX-SOLDIER IS LAID TO REST IN ILLINOIS

Mrs. J. H. Dickerman of Matthews returned home Tuesday, having been called to Belvidere, Ill., to attend the funeral services of her brother, Wm. Moore. The deceased was accorded a military burial.

The late Mr. Moore had lived in the Belvidere community nearly forty years. He was absent only during the years spent in service overseas in the late war.

Miss Gladys Conley has been confined to her bed the past several days suffering with sore throat.

GREENHOUSE ADDITION ALMOST COMPLETE

A combination office, display and work room housed in a building 20x40 feet is nearing completion at the Sikeston Greenhouse. The addition is part of the expansion program recently decided upon by Wm. F. Woehlecke, owner and manager.

The display and office building is being constructed at the northeast corner of the grounds fronting on New Street. It will consist of a stucco building 20x40 feet. The front half will house special flowers in season, being in effect a sales and display room. Plate glass windows will front on New Street. A cooling and work room is being constructed under half of the building. Additional work quarters will be housed in the east half of the ground floor opening upon another "greenhouse" still to be constructed.

The latter will consist of a glass-roofed house 70 or 75 feet long running east and west and connecting the present greenhouse plant proper with the office building. It will serve the florist as an auxiliary growing house, carrying transplanted flowers, pot flowers and other items reset from the main starting and growing houses.

The whole idea, according to Mr. Woehlecke, is to facilitate service at the least expenditure of labor. When completed in time for the spring season, the Sikeston greenhouse plant will carry 5000 square feet under glass, and will be able to serve the entire Southeast Missouri territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Woehlecke came to Sikeston about 18 months ago, accepted a run-down plant and in that length of time have established the proving his ability as a first class florSikeston plant as one of the foremost in this section of the State. Besides ist, Mr. Woehlecke has established himself firmly as a landscape artist and horticulturist who "knows his business".

Miss Eula Hahn, who has been pursuing the stenographic course at the Chillicothe Business College, has accepted a position as stenographer with State Senator Ralph Wammack Miss Hahn, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hahn, left Chillicothe Tuesday for Jefferson City to take up the duties of her position.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Standard is authorized to announce Pleas Malcolm as candidate for Superintendent of Schools of Scott County, subject to the action of the voters at the election April 7, 1931.

The Red Cross will be calling on you soon for a donation. Do your best to help out at this time to feed the hungry. Some talk is going around that half of the money goes to the National headquarters, and those with this belief say the will not give, but are willing to help buy food for local people. Fifty cents of every membership goes to the National Red Cross, the balance remains for local use. If you buy one dollar membership, half of it goes away, but if you take a ten dollar membership, only fifty cents of it goes to Washington.

* * *

Seed corn of high germinating qualities will no doubt be scarce this year. Farmers who are contemplating using their own seed should have it germinated before planting time. Remove several kernels from the tip, butt and end of 20 or 30 ears of corn, send this amount to your County Agent who will have it germinted for you and results returned to you. This may save much time in labor in not having to replant your crop.

* * *

The Democratic majority in the House at Jefferson City are the same type of high binders and grafters as have been in charge of that branch of State Government for several years. Each Democratic member has been allowed three clerks, the Republicans one, besides divers and sundry stenographers, doorkeepers, etc., etc., without end. And we had hoped for relief from a Democratic Legislature.

* * *

This is to caution housewives to be careful who they give cans of fruit, jars of preserves, or anything out of their supplies. It matters not what line of talk they put up, send them to Red Cross headquarters where their cases will be investigated and relief given if worthy. Recently a party who said he lived up Morley way, made a house-to-house canvass in the Southwest part of Sikeston and in nearly every instance got a can of goods of some sort. Friday of last week, a man made the rounds in Ward One with fair success only. He finally told one woman he was from Kentucky—and there you are.

If we were a Democratic Senator at Jefferson City, we would vote with the Republicans in preference to having Carter M. Buford, and his Casey-Kinney bunch run the Democratic State Senate. Buford is a disgrace, while Casey and Kinney are disturbers when they can't rule.

* * *

It is said that the Senate will be asked to enact laws to curb election expenses. In principle, such legislation is wise, to the end that election day may not deteriorate into an occasion for auctioning off a place of public trust to the highest bidder. Practically considered, however, a campaign covering an entire State is a business matter of no small magnitude, and capital is required in the performance. What was done to obtain the office, and not the cost of doing it, is the important question.

* * *

President Hoover has called on the Country to subscribe Ten Million Dollars to the Red Cross to feed the starving Americans. The money will be raised all right, but we are just wondering why he didn't ask Congress to head the list with a good strong subscription.

* * *

The talk in certain sections of Stoddard County of running the negro farmers out of the County, is unthinkable. It is stated they are taking the place of white men who left the farm for the city, but now being without a job, return to find negroes as tenants. The idea is ridiculous. We feel certain these negroes are behaving themselves, have given all the aid possible to help the landlord and should be protected by both the landlord and the law. Every right thinking man should make it his business to give these folks, who were brought into the community, a square deal.

Tariffs And Economic Anarchy

Back in 1880 Gen. Hancock defeated himself for the Presidency of the United States by his famous sentence: "The tariff is a local issue". In the sense in which the General used the words it is possible he was right; but today that sentiment is completely wrong. The tariff is not a local issue; it is not even a national issue; it is an international issue which should be handled by some kind of international technique.

In the tariff act that was recently passed in Washington, 890 different items were increased, affecting imports from nearly every country in the world. Sugar from Cuba, watches from Switzerland, carpets and rugs from Asiatic countries, lumber from Canada, olives and citrus fruits from Italy and Spain, chemicals from Germany, earthenware from Belgium—the list could be indefinitely extended. Following the passage of the act there came from every corner of the world a volume of angry protest and retaliation which has scarcely diminished to this day. The act was a blow struck by one nation at the economic stability of 60 nations. It was the blind, desperate effort of a great country to hang on to the top of the ladder by kicking at every other country.

Take the case of Switzerland, for example. The Swiss Republic is to a large extent a nation of watchmakers. She has no natural resources; she imports all her raw materials. She has been shipping to the United States approximately $11,000,000 worth of watches and watch movements every year. Our new tariff bill closed the doors of many of her factories. A handful of men, sitting around a table in Washington in an atmosphere heavy with ignorance and cigar smoke, crippled the chief industry of a country 3000 miles away.

This is not world order. It is anarchy. Even from the standpoint of our own self-interest it is catastrophe. For Switzerland was buying from us $45,000,000 worth of goods a year. With her principal industry disorganized, and with the ramifying effect of that collapse upon her own purchasing power, with what funds will she buy form us in the future, even if she now had the desire?

The old doctrine of "each for himself and God for us all" which Canning enunciated a hundred years ago after the wreck of the Holy Alliance does not fit into a twentieth century world. A national tariff act, passed in utter disregard of its consequences abroad, is today an anachronism. It is a throwback to an age of savage conquest. The whole question of tariffs belongs in the international field. It is a problem for common counsel and joint consideration. As a weapon of attack to be used by one nation against the rest, it should be classified wiht TNT and poison gas. The world must submit to economic as well as military disarmament.—From an Address by Raymond B. Fosdick.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL FROM MATTHEWS

Measles are thick in Matthews now.

Miss Dixie Hicks is visiting relatives in New Madrid.

Mr. and Mrs. Jere Caverno of Sikeston were Matthews visitors Sunday.

Little Mary Lou Stroud is recovering from an attack of bronchial pneumonia.

Mrs. Dora Waters is very ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dimple Gurley.

R. J. Stroud and Charles Lindelsmith left Friday on a motor trip thru the South.

Will Dunlap returned Monday from a three weeks visit with relatives in Sarsas, Miss.

Mrs. Gordon Stroud and sister, Miss Margie Burch, shopped in Sikeston Monday.

Clyde Williford returned from St. Louis Saturday, where, until recently, he has been employed.

The friends of James Huls, Sr. will be glad to hear that he is again able to be at his business again.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Caruthers of near Sikeston were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Caruthers, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crosby and little daughter of Holyoke, Colo., are here visiting Mrs. Crosby's parents and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dance and children of Decatur, Ill., arrived Saturday for a two weeks' visit with the latter's mother, Mrs. Achley.

Miss Verna King and brother Robert, motored to Sikeston Saturday. Miss Nota Watkins accompanied them home to spend the week-end.

We were sorry to hear of the illness of Billy Robert at Central College in Fayette, Mo., and are trusting nothing of a serious nature is wrong.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Buchanan of Sikeston visited Mr. and Mrs. J. R. King Friday and attended the basketball game at the new gym, between Lilbourn and Matthews.

We are glad to report that Forest Ball is able to be out on crutches. Mr. Ball sustained an injury on his leg in an automobile accident some few weeks ago and it was necessary to have an operation, which has healed sufficiently for him to be out.

One of our Matthews ladies who attended "All Quiet on the Western Front", at Malone Theatre, Sikeston, Tuesday night, said she never wanted to hear anyone speak of the glories of war. If there are any glories, she is too dumb to appreciate them.

Mrs. J. H. Dickerman was called to Golconda, Ill., Friday on account of the serious illness of her brother. Miss Genevieve Dickerman and Glenn Waters accompanied her as far as Cairo.

The Matthews basketball team went to Cape Girardeau Tuesday night to play the College Preps. Owing to the severity of the snow storm, part of the boys were delayed on the road and our boys were defeated. Those going from here were compelled to stay all night as traveling was an impossibility.

The people of Matthews brought a generous pounding to the Methodist church Sunday for their pastor and family for which they are very thankful. We are proud of the wonderful attendance at Sunday school and hope to see many new faces next Sunday. We also want to thank Richwood for their generous offering.

Supt. G. D. Englehardt was a guest at a luncheon given at the Marquette Hotel in Cape Girardeau, Saturday. Mr. Englehardt is one of the committeemen to make arrangement for the District Teachers' Meeting next October and the luncheon was given in honor of those who are on the program to provide for the entertainment.

Much praise is due L. D. Waters and Clifford Sutton for the able way they have handled the Red Cross Chapter here. Hundreds of people have been helped, but funds are fast giving out and now the heavy snow will make it a serious question to handle. This work is a noble work but those who have to meet the requests for help is placed sometimes in a very bad position, to just how to act for the best. The people of this place should give these two men their loyal support in helping them discharge their duty instead of finding fault with their method of distribution.

KONJOLA ENDS RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Out Stomach Trouble and Neuritis--Ex Marine and War Veteran Gives Praise.

MR. WILLIAM R. FRY

"I have been crippled for nearly twelve years with rheumatism and neuritis", said Mr. William R. Fry, former United States Marine, living at R. F. D. No. 3, Ola, Arkansas. "I believe that I contracted these ailments during my eighteen months service in the Marine Corps during the War. My legs hurt me frightfully and my ankles became swollen to twice their normal size. My knees were so stiff and swollen that I had to walk with a cane. My stomach troubled me and I lost weight and strength.

"In eight weeks Konjola did me a world of good. After twelve bottles, the swelling in my limbs disappeared. I am free from pain in my arms, back, and limbs, and no longer need a cane. I have gained twelve pounds in weight. I give Konjola all the credit for my new health".

Taken over a period of from six to eight weeks, Konjola can do for you just what it did for Mr. Fry. Give Konjola a trial.

Konjola is sold in Sikeston at the Derris Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FROGS IN HAWAII RANK AS "LIVESTOCK"

Frog culture is a newcomer to the livestock industry in the Hawaiian Islands. The Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture recently organized two boys' 4-H Frog Clubs to encourage frog farming.

After studying the market for frog legs and learning that the Honolulu market alone could handle 6000 pairs of frog legs a week at 20c a pair, the Extension Service organized clubs in west Hawaii and on the island of Kauai. Marketing specialists considered this demand sufficient to make frog raising a profitable enterprise. Other clubs will be organized.

The agricultural experiment station imported two species of frogs into Hawaii a few years ago because they feed on certain insect pests. They proved worthy insect fighters and likewise acquired a wide reputation for the cooking quality of their hind legs. The natives call these frogs, "mountain chickens". The club members plan to have a frog show this winter in conjunction with the annual poultry show. It will be the first show of its kind in the Territory and possibly the first in the United States.

MISSOURI PLAN SAVES CHICKS

It has been estimated that one-third to one-half of chicks raised in hap-hazard fashion die before they reach the age of ten weeks, says County Agent A. J. Renner. A small percentage of this mortality is unavoidable, but farmers who follow the Missouri Plan of Growing Healthy Chicks raise approximately nine-tenths of their chicks to maturity. The essential practices used in this method of raising chicks are to hatch eggs or buy chicks before May 1, raise on clean fresh range, feed a growing ration, brood each hatch separately, separate cockerels and pullets, and maintain roomy sanitary quarters.

Early hatched chicks are more profitable. They grow faster and mature more quickly. The cockerels reach broiler weight while the price is comparatively high and the pullets usually come into production in advance of cold weather, when higher egg prices prevail. Earlier pullets are generally heavier in weight at maturity and they produce larger eggs.

Another advantage of early hatching is that the young stock is less likely to become infested with intestinal parasites or infected with coccidiosis. Investigations show that worm eggs and coccidia, even though they are taken into the digestive tract of the chicken, are not as virulent unless they have remained for a month or more in the moist, warm soil.

Although a small number of pullets come into production when they are 4½ to 5 months of age, the majority of them do not lay before they are 7 to 9 months old. This means that the heavy breeds (Barred Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons) should be hatched early in March, and the light breeds (Leghorns and Anaconas) in April.

It is easier to raise chicks if they are all hatched at the same time. This may necessitate the purchase of additional incubators or baby chicks. On many farms the expense of incubators is more than met by the sale of baby chicks before and after the home hatch.

Details of this plan of chick raising will be discussed at a County-wide chick meeting which is being arranged for Thursday, January 29 at Benton.

CHICKEN MEETING JANUARY 29

There is trouble ahead if you raise your chicks where the old hens run or where chicks were brooded last year, says County Agent Renner. Chicks raised on such grounds usually become diseased, grow slower, the cockerels do not reach breeding age early and the pullets fail to come into production in the fall when eggs are of the highest prices.

How to dodge this trouble and many other helpful points in baby chick production ill be explained at the baby chick meeting Thursday, January 29 at Benton. County Agent Renner and Harold Canfield of the Missouri College of Agriculture will discuss the most satisfactory methods of poultry growing.

"HAMMERS AND SAWS" BUT NO KNOCKING ON FARM PROGRAMS JANUARY 22-24

The pigs averaged 190 pounds when 6 months old. The feed eaten by the sow and pigs up to that time was 66½ bushels of corn, 1000 pounds mill feed, and 300 puonds of tankage. The total feed cost was $93.83, the feed cost for each 100 pounds gain being $6.17. The pigs were sold at $9.75 per hundred pounds, and showed a profit of $46.17 after deducting all expenses.

These pigs were farrowed in a modified A hog house and raised on green fresh ground free from worms. Two hog house building demonstrations have been arranged by County Agent Renner Thursday, January 22, at R. Q. Black's farm west of Oran at 10:00 a. m. The other meeting at Sikeston on Saturday, January 24, at 9:00 a. m. In both cases farmers are requested to bring their hammer, saw and square so that they can help construct a house which is recommended for Southeast Missouri conditions. R. W. Oberlin, Extension Engineer of the Missouri College of Agriculture will assist the County Agent in these meetings.

A shallow flat glass or earthenware baking dish with partitions is a great convenience for warming up small portions of different leftover vegetables. Grease the plate with butter or other fat, and put each kind of vegetable in a compartment by itself. Use a white sauce on one, buttered crumbs on another, and perhaps parsley, butter, salt and pepper on a third. A little cream to moisten one of the vegetables may be used if you have no white sauce on hand. Put the dish in the oven long enough to heat through thoroughly, and serve. Some members of the family will ask for one vegetable, and some another, so that all will be used, and all will be delicious.

LESS-USED MEAT CUTS AND THRIFT

The thrifty homemaker, who is at the same time a good cook, is quick to recognize the advantage of the less-demanded meat cuts. The meat dishes suggested below by Inez S. Wilson, home economist, fill the demands of the good cook and the good manager.

Hot Spiced Tongue

Boil, skin and trim a good-sized beef tongue. Rub the surface well with one-half teaspoon ginger and one teaspoon allspice. Slice a small onion and fry it in butter. Dredge the tongue with flour and brown it in the onion seasoned butter. Put in a casserole. Make a sauce by blending one teaspoon flour with the fat in the pan and adding one cup stock, the juice of one lemon and one-half cup seeded raisins. Pour this sauce over the tongue and bake thirty minutes.

Breaded Breast of Lamb

Cook a breast of lamb in water for forty-five minutes or until tender. Drain, remove the bones and press under a heavy weight until cold. Cut into pieces convenient for serving. Dip each piece in melted butter or salad oil. Season with salt and pepper, then dip in fine crumbs, and fry in fat until nicely browned.

Mock Goose

Parboil a leg of pork and remove the skin. Rub with butter, sprinkle with powdered sage, salt, pepper, bread crumbs and finely minced onion. Roast in a moderate oven until tender and nicely browned. Bake a well-seasoned bread dressing in the pan with the pork. Serve with fried apple rings.

It is said that certain ready-mixed oil and water paints are "fireproof" but no paint makes wood really fireproof, though some paints resist fire more than others. Fire-retarding paint should contain as little oil as possible, and lead and zinc pigments should be largely replaced by fusible incombustible, and insoluble substances. Most substances that have fire-retarding qualities are soluble in water and soon leach out of paint exposed to the weather. Powdered boric acid makes paint more resistant to fire for a short time.

ABYSSINIAN DEBTORS CHAINED TO CREDITORS FOR LENGTH OF CLAIM

Addis Ababa, January 10.—The chains of debt are something more than a figure of speech in Abyssinia. The person who cannot or will not pay is shackled to his or her creditor—and the bonds are not severed until the debt is discharged. Sometimes these business unions last for months. One who guarantees a debt sometimes suffers the same penalty, and the debtor, guarantor and creditor make a weird trio as they clank thru the streets.

The markets of Seattle are model in many respects. They are owned and operated by the municipality and they are so unusual that they are frequetly visited by tourists who are often tempted to buy, although they have little need for anything in the food line. By far the greater number of tradespeople are Orientals who do everything to make their goods attractive. Great piles of vegetables are to be seen all scrupulously clean and arranged in order. Most of these are kept wet as a protection from the heat and to make their appearance more attractive. The noise and chatter here is intense made by the salespeople calling the attention of the passersby to their goods. A separate part of the market is devoted to the native farmers which is almost as attractive and less noisy.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF SIKESTON TRADE TERRITORY

An idea of the ideal location of Sikeston as a trading center can be gained from the "trade area" map above. It accounts in part at least for the tremendous crows which participated last Saturday in Sikeston's first big trade day. No small part of its success, however, is due to the many types of business, furnishing houses, wholesale and retail shops, and the list of professional services at hand for the convenience of the territory.

Dairymen Find Profit In Equipment

Members of Colorado dairy herd improvement associations are investing in new equipment for profit according to a recent report of the State supervisor. One farmer installed a new cream separator in view of the fact that tests on his old separator showed that he was losing nearly $70 a year. His neighbor put in a new gasoline engine to get more satisfactory service from his milking machine and also to run his cream separator. Another farmer in the same association installed steel stanchions for his small calves. Two farmers in other associations have just completed modern barns for their herds while another farm was being equipped with a new milking machine.

4 ROMEOS ARE SNOWBOUND IN TUESDAY BLIZZARD

Four Sikeston romeos and as many maidens in distress were snowbound in real True Story style last Tuesday night while enroute to the respective home of the girls some eight or nine miles southeast of Sikeston.

The four resourceful lads were none other than Earl Ward, Ward Bratton, Shriley Hopper and Bland Wright. They earned the right to claim resourcefulness before the four maidens, the Fletcher and Crandall sisters were safely delivered to their homes.

The Crandall sisters and the Fletcher girls might have arrived home safely without the aid of the four gallants, but that would have spoiled the story. Our story has its beginning at the Malone Theatre. The feature Tuesday may of may not have evoked the proper frame of mind.

To begin with a blizzard of real proportions was raging. The eight will swear freely to that—they probably did before the night had spent itself.

Both cars, that of the Fletcher girls and one driven by Hopper first got stuck about one mile from the W. L. Bohanan home. That was at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. The Bohanan family, being good natured arose and built a fire. The travelers were warmed and then trugged thru additional miles of snow and wind to the home of R. Q. Brown.

Brown repeated the Bohanan hospitality and offered his automobile in which the footsore, cold and more or less tired group pushed, pulled and tugged along until the girls were delivered safe and sound to their respective homes. The Crandall home was reached about 4:30 a. m. Wednesday, and the travelers there decided to bunk for the night, bolstered considerably by warmth, a hot breakfast and the fact that journey's end had been reached.

The boys, however, had barely tasted of trials and tribulations. They were 7 miles from home. Their car was stuck in a snowdrift, and to top it all off, the radiator had frozen. Teams and a willing spirit worked wonders and the Chevy coach, vintage '29, finally reached the Sikeston sandhill.

There it spluttered and stopped, and from that point the boys walked to town, secured a truck and finally were towed into the city.

Misses Ella and Verna Heisserer and friends of near Brown Salcedo attended a dance near Matthews last Saturday night.

The Woman's Club will hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. R. E. Bailey, 305 Dorothy Street, Tuesday afternoon, January 20, with Mrs. Effie Hunter in charge. A full membership is requested.

Charlie Mitchell, who returned from a visit near Buffalo, N. Y., the latter part of the week, reports Southeast Missouri in much better fix, in every way, than the agricultural sections that he passed through. In Ohio he says farmers have been hauling water to drink and for stock for many months.

MRS.. HEISSERER HONORED WITH BIRTHDAY PARTY SUN.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gruen, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Geska, and children, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Frey, Mr. and Mrs. John Hodges and children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomason and son, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Heisserer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Fletcher and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Schuehart and children, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Klingle and daughter, Katherine McRay, Mr. and Mrs. Irby Owens and children. The day was greatly enjoyed by all. In the evening a group of girls and boys surprise her, which was folowed by a dance.

BLIZZARD ADDS TO SUFFERING FROM COLD

A blizzard, which Tuesday night whipped a fine snow into fantastic swirls, and sifted the white stuff into unexpected places brought the first tinge of real winter to this district when the mercury dropped to two points above zero.

Traffic was only temporarily halted on highways, roads and city streets. Gangs of highway maintainance men equipped with tractors and scrapers cleared the way within 24 hours and normal travel was again possible. Roads are slippery in places.

Only one major accident was reported. A Carson transfer truck skidded at the Malone Theatre corner Tuesday evening about 5:30 o'clock and crashed into a parked sedan owned by Frank W. Van Horne.

Fears
are not as convincing as history---and the world hasn't come to an end!

A year ago a financial cyclone struck the United States. Inflated values became deflated bargains. The Bugaboo of Business Pessimism stalked abroad. His groans froze the blood of American Leadership and a good many people sold themselves so completely to Blueness that they have not yet ceased to show surprise each morning to see the Sun rise in its accustomed place.

A good story is going the rounds. A large and rambunctious bass went to live in an aquarium. In the tank next door, separated only by a partition of clear glass, were some small, fat appetizing minnows. The bass made a lunge at the minnows and bumped his fool nose against the clear glass. Several times a day thereafter whenever his appetite for minnows grew strong he bumped his nose again and again. Then he stopped. Even a fish won't keep on being a fool.

But one day the clear glass partition was removed. The bass, remembering his bumped nose, made no attempt to gobble up a minnow. The minnows swam all around in perfect freedom unmolested by the hungry bass—for you see the Big Bass had sold himself on the fact that business was bad. The Big Bass had bumped his nose. He had become a Business Pessimist.

Many business people are like the Big Bass. They have let the glass partition of business depression stand between them and prosperity. After a few feeble efforts to break through the partition they have taken it for granted that the barrier is permanent.

This great country of ours has gone through dozens of off years and has emerged each time richer and stronger than before. Watch history repeat itself!

ADVERTISING IS THE BEST BARRIER REMOVER

The world isn't coming to an end! On every side news is more optimistic. America is not at heart pessimist. One hundred and fifty million people are still living, breathing, working in America. Savings banks have more money on deposit than ever before. Money for business is cheap and plentiful. There are 6800 people in Sikeston who must and are going to buy thing this year. There are many times that number in the Sikeston territory.

The live aggressive business man knows that this business will go to him who goes after it most efficiently and who handles it best. Advertising, the greatest single force in American business, has not lost its inherent force, its power and its usefulness. It is needed now more than ever before. But the conditions call for Greater Discrimination in its purchase and in its use. The Advertising Dollar must show its leadership in a speedy business recovery. Not lavishness, but wisdom, must be its guiding force. It must be alert and optimistic, eager to serve, yet wise in choice. More is expected of the Advertising Dollar than ever befor—and it can do more than ever before.

Advertisers have learned in the days of "dollar discrimination" to depend on the Twive-a-Week Sikeston Standard.

The Twiee-a-Week Sikeston Standard through dominant coverage is first in proven results.

SECOND RED CROSS DRIVE IMPERATIVE SAYS NATIONAL CHAPTER IN TELEGRAM

A message received last Monday by local Red Cross officers asks the participation of the Scott County Chapter in a second drive for funds to carry out relief measures in the district and drought-stricken area generally

The telegram:

St. Louis, January 12

C. E. Brenton, Chm. Scott County Chapter, American Red Cross:

Greatly increased demands during last ten days have made imperative immediate campaign for Red Cross relief fund to meet emergency situation in parts of twenty-one States in drought-stricken area. Quotas based on minimum of ten million dollars assigned chapters throughout nation by telegram tonight. Your Chapter should continue determined effort to secure local contributions as your part of this national effort.—William M. Baxter, Jr.

Plans are now being formulated to carry out the instructions. Mr. Brenton was emphatic in his statement to local critics with reference to sending money out of town.

"Not one cent of this money will leave the Scott County Chapter. The Chapter wants it definitely understood that the National Chapter has returned for local use many times the amount sent to headquarters in membership dues. We have used up local contributions long ago, and for the past several weeks have used nothing but funds contributed by the National Association". Brenton is endeavoring to stop the whispering campaign of uninformed persons who insist that National headquarters receive half of all contributions. That is not correct. Fifty cents of each MEMBERSHIP whether $1 or $500 is sent to National headquarters. Many times that amount has been sent back to assist the local chapter in alleviating distress and suffering.

Much of the criticism of Red Cross work comes through misunderstanding, local officials believe. To correct the impression that very little assistance is being rendered the following condensed report is submitted for publication:

A total of 435 families or 2500 persons have been given assistance, either fuel, groceries, clothing or all three.

Cash spent $1000.

Clothing and food donated dispensed the present situation amounts to $2600.

All officers, C. E. Brenton, County committeemen and women, assistants and clerks have donated their services. Misses Elizabeth Stallcup and Myra Tanner have recently been added to the force to assist in investigating cases and preparing reports.

John Young last week accepted the position of Chairman of the Sikeston branch office. He will be asssited by J. F. Cox, Frank W. Van Horne and Earl Malone in the unemployment situation which now prevails. In addition to this force of officers and clerks, many persons have donated trucks, time and labor to haul wood and to assist in the work of giving relief.

A plan for raising additional funds has been suggested and is in process of being worked out in detail. Caruthersville and Malden were first in the district to hit upon the plan of asking salaried men and women about town to donate one day's wages per month to relieve suffering. A similar plan is being worked out here by a committee which originated under the auspieces of the Sikeston Lions Club. The committee is to meet Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Scott County Milling Company, and includs the following: Art Wallhausen, chairman; members, Lee Bowman, Joe Sarsar, Bill Sensenbaugh, W. H. Huters, G. J. Phillips, Pat Nonan, John Fisher and others to be named later.

The idea simmers down to this: Those who have steady jobs can best afford to assist those who are unemployed, and who as a result of unemployment must be aided. The idea will be presented in greater detail next Monday.

FRIDAY IS ALUMNI NIGHT AS CHARLESTON BLUEJAYS PREPARE TO BATTLE LOCAL CAGEMEN

Whenever Charleston and Sikeston meet in any athletic event, there's "sumpin' doin' " Teams which ordinarily play haphazard football or basketball, or perform naturally in track events "go crazy" and do the unexpected. For that reason, Coaches John Harris Marshall and Cunningham expect almost anything to happen here Friday night when the Bulldogs give battle to visiting Charleston Bluejays.

In addition to renewing old time rivalries, the evening has been designated "alumni" night. Old grads former cage stars boys and girls, are especialy invited to be present.

The two Sikeston squads are more or less hopped up over their recent week-end string of five straight victories, and no less than a Bluejay feather will do. However, ten Bluejays will be equaly determined to take a bit of Bulldog fur as a memento, so there you are.

Cunningham does not believe in advertising his starting lineup. Whatever combination is strongest at any particular game time starts. Other players ride the bench. Starters, however, surmised from previous games might include the following: Daniels Cox, J. H. and Anderson Hayden and Jones.

While Miss Moore has not divulged her opening quintet the following will possibly see action as starters: Forwards, Andres and Sells; centers, Conrad and Frey; guards, Albritton and York.

A special short entertainment is being planned immediately after the games. Miss Madge Davis and her school orchestra will furnish music.

ANOTHER BOY SCOUT TROOP ORGANIZED

The Men's Bible Class of the Methodist church last Sunday voted to sponsor another Boy Scout troop in Sikeston. H. E. Dudley will act as chairman of the movement.

The Sikeston District Scout Committee will meet Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Missouri Utilities Office to organize and plan work for 1931. Among other items to come before the committee are plans for a summer camp, the organization of more troops and election of officers to serve until January, 1932.

An area meeting is scheduled to be held January 25 at Poplar Bluff. The business meeting of the Area Council is to convene at 3 o'clock at the Court House, and a social program at 5:15 o'clock.

A banquet is to be served at the latter function to which Area leaders and their wives are invited.

Mrs. Ada Vaughn returned to her home at Oran, Wednesday.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Louis Ferrell has been suffering with a severe spell of neuritis.

We are glad to report that little Tommy Roberts, who has been quite ill is some better. Tommy is suffering with ear trouble, the after effects of scarlet fever.

The following attended the Missionary Institute for the Cape Girardeau District held at Morley Wednesday: Rev. and Mrs. Bates, Mrs. J. N. Ross, Mrs. Ernest Harper, Mrs. Lacy Allard, Mrs. Clarence Felker, Mrs. Wallace Applegate and Miss Florence Baker. On account of the condition of the roads, only about fifty were in attendance.

DOES ANYONE KNOW MARTHA WILANS?

The local Red Cross office is in receipt of a letter from Martha Wilans, requesting assistance. Miss or Mrs. Wilans claims to live on the corner of Dorothy and William Streets, but the two run parallel. To date special investigators have been unable to locate the Wilans case, and the Red Cross is anxious to assist.

If you know where Wilans live, please get in touch with John Young at Red Cross headquarters, phone 526, Peoples Bank Building.

XMAS STREET LIGHTS ARE PLACED IN STORAGE

Christmas is officially over. Green and red and blue lights, which for 30 days reminded one constantly of the Christmas festival, were removed Monday and Tuesday this week by workmen for the Missouri Utilities Company.

Sikeston merchants carried out the scheme of decorating the city for Christmas by dividing the cost of installation of the temporary lighting effect.

Mrs. Lee Bowman will entertain with bridge, Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Hirschberg are returning to Sikeston to make their home, which will be good news for their many friends. Jean has been connected with the Himmelberger-Harrison Land Co., in Cape Girardeau and he will be with them here in their office located in the Scott County Mill Building. Mr. and Mrs. Hirschberg and little daughter will occupy the Baker property recently vacated by C. C. Rose.

THRILLING AIR FIGHTS IN "HELL'S ANGELS" COST $2,000,000 TO FILM

"Hell's Angels", the most expensive and most talked about film-drama of all time, will be the deluxe atraction at the Malone Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

Nearly three years in the making, and bearing an overhead cost of approximately $4,000,000, this lavish air-thriller is the screen sensation of the new era of talkies.

Howard Hughes, the 25-year-old producer and director of "Hells' Angels", has shattered all records in time and money spent on a single picture. His prodigal outlay is discussed wherever films are shown, and fans everywhere are eager to view the first multi-million dollar talkie.

It is more than three years since "Hell's Angels" was first launched —as a silent super. Subsequently the cast and story were revamped, and all of the non-flying sequences re-filmed, with sound and dialogue.

Ben Lyon, James Hall and Jean Harlow are co-featured in the leading roles and are supported by such well-known players as John Darrow. Lucien Prival, Jane Winton, Lena Malena, Douglas Gilmore, Stephen Carr, Tommy Carr, Pat Somerset, Granville Divis, Liso Gora, Wyndham Hall and others.

Approximately 137 aviators, and as many mechanics, including nearly every stunt flyer and ex-war ace available in America, participated in the sky action of "Hell's Angels" which alone required 18 months to record.

Exactly 87 planes, including 40 true war-type ships, both German and Allied, took part in Hell's Angels".

A Zeppelin and a giant German Gotha bombing plane also figure prominently in mile-high action above the clouds. This is the largest air fleet ever assembled to perform in a private enterprise.

Ray Marshall is on a ten-day business trip to Tennessee.

The Auxiliary of the American Legion will have their next meeting at the home of Mrs. C. L. Blanton, Jr., Wednesday evening. All members are urged to be present.

The Loto party at the Marshall Hotel Wednesday afternoon was enjoyed by a large number of ladies. Mrs. Frank Noonan will be the hostess for next Wednesday afternoon.

French and English syndicates have recovered more than $250,000,000 in bullion from the wrecks of treasure ships in spite of the dangers and treachery of ocean waters.

Floyd Foght, 18 months old, received more publicity in New Orleans newspapers for several days recently than anyone else in the city. First, he swallowed a 3-inch live gold fish from the family gold fish bowl. He was hurried to a hospital and his life saved. Soon after he was brought back home, he opened the family bird cage and tried to swallow the canary whole, his mother getting to him just in time. There's nothing vegetarian about this youngster.

CLEANUP PROGRAM ON RED CROSS PLAN

Plans have been worked out by Jno. Young, Sikeston Red Cross chairman, to provide work for unemployed in cleaning up Harts' cemetery and the Miner graveyard, it was announced Thursday morning.

Both cemeteries are in need of a thorough cleaning up program. More than 600 graves have been allowed to run down and overgrow with bushes, shrubs, young trees and grasses. Mr. Young plans to dig up red bud, maple, oak and other young shade trees, and hole them in for future use by the City, Highway Department or private individuals for beautifying the town and community later in the season.

Workmen will be paid by the Red Cross in grocery or clothing rations, and part of the cost defrayed from the sale of such shrubs and trees as may be saved from the two cemeteries.

Rev. A. C. Rudloff, of the local Baptist church, is responsible largely for the plan of cleaning up the Miner cemetery tract. Each dollar raised by Rev. Rudloff and his committee will be matched dollar for dollar by Red Cross for the latter project. A total of $22 had been collected by Thursday morning. Contributions for cleaning up this 2-acre plot of ground are being received by W. W. Widdows, farmer living near the Miner cemetery, and by Rev. Rudloff here in Sikeston. Work is to start Monday morning at 8 o'clock weather permitting.

Since starting the work plan of relieving unemployment, Chairman C E. Brenton has received much encouragement and assistance from the City and from the Sikeston Special Road District. The latter will provide a limited amount of work sanding a strip of gumbo road, half the labor expense to be carried by the Road District and half by the Red Cross Chapter. A similar plan of providing work is being carried out as far as possible by the City.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pate of Anniston were visitors here Wednesday. They enjoyed a bob sled ride on the highway.

BEEKEEPING GENERALLY BEST ON ONE-MAN SCALE

The average beekeeper will make the most profit if he limits his business to 400 colonies, the number he can care for single-handed, the United States Department of Agriculture says. He may be a first-rate bee handler, but the temperament of a good beeman generally is not the temperament for managing employees efficiently.

One man can do practically all the work required for 350 or 400 colonies, even during rush seasons, the department learned by studying for three years the records of beekeepers in widely separated regions of the country. With an apiary of this size, however, he will need some additional means of income. Beekeeping is at its best, generally, as a supplement to farming. One man in New York State, who farms 100 acres and cares for 70 colonies of bees learned from experience that a 70-colony apiary is equivalent to about 40 acres of land in both income and labor.

One beekeeper, who spends little time in his apiary and is an inefficient employer of labor, had a labor cost of more than $6 per colony. He lost 53 cents a colony one year, and $1.75 a colony the next year. But not all good beemen are poor managers.

The Baptist minister had been summoned to the bedside of the Methodist woman who was very ill. As he went up the walk he met the little daughter and said to her: "I am very glad that your mother remembered me in her illness. Is your minister out of town?

"No", answered the child. "He's at home, but we thought it might be something contagious and we didn't want to expose him to it".—Swiped.

Of the entire congressional body, 36 per cent attended college and were graduated; 47 per cent of the speakers of the House; 54 per cent of the vice presidents; 62 per cent of the secretaries of State; 50 per cent of the secretaries of treasury; 67 per cent of the attorneys general, and 69 per cent of the justices of the supreme court. The boy with no schooling has one chance in 150,000 of performing distinguished service; with elementary education he has four times a chance; with high school education he has 87 times the chance; with college education 800 times the chance.

MAKE TAX REFUND OF $1619 THIS WEEK

One point of dispute and hard feeling in the Municipal Light Plant discussion was removed at least tentatively this week, when a tax refund amounting to $1619 was made from the City Clerk's office.

The amount was divided among taxpayers who had paid their taxes for 1930 prior to a Council order revoking a special assessment of 55 cents to defray interest on light plant bonds. All other taxpayers will pay the customary rate of $1.10 as heretofore.

J. C. Lawless, who lives five miles south of Poplar Bluff, pleaded guilty in circuit court yesterday, to a charge of common assault and was fined $100 and costs. Lawless was arrested after he had brutally beaten a 13-year-old girl, whom he was caring for as a ward of the county. The child had been obtained by him, from the county detention home. She was removed from his custory and taken back to the home.—Poplar Bluff Republican

NO LESS THAN NOTHING

If "every dog has his day", the dog days in August and September will have to annex a few extra days to take care of the various cases of "puppy love", soon to grow up.

Over in Budapest, the situation is stranger than fiction. The other day 2000 men marched on the jail at Kaposwar, demanding that they be imprisoned, as they preferred prison fare to starving.

O. Henry, the author, wrote stuff like that back in the latter part of the nineteenth century. "The Cop and the Anthem" seemed like an impossible story the time I read it, but now the Tombs would look good to any beggar.

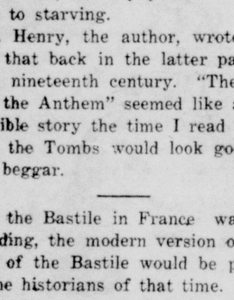
If the Bastile in France was still standing, the modern version of the Fall of the Bastile would be painful to the historians of that time.

News of such things as unemployment and the plague—er gulp—I mean panic, makes us tighter on lending out the old family soup bone. It still had a little marrow in it during Cleveland's time, so we fared pretty good, but we had to vanish it the other day to preserve it through such hard usage.

It's left up to Wickersham's report on prohibition to force an extra session of Congress after March 4. I was afraid the Congressman would have to go home before long, but leave it to Wickersham to lose a lot of good newspaper space that could be used to run a good murder story.

Probably Wickersham is trying to decide whether the eighteenth amendment is constitutional, or just another law.

I insist that bootlegging is helpful to the unemployment situation. Look, Friends, Romans and Countrymen at the men that are required to make the varnish, lye, iodine, carbolic acid, quinine, creosote, old socks, soap and the other ingredients that are needed for our Christmas liquor.



A single gallon of gasoline costs more than the current to light your garage three months.

By the papers I note that some of the railway companies are adopting the two-cent coach fare rate, that is: Something like two-cents for each mile you travel.

I'm afraid it's a catch like these penny sales you run on to now and then, you have to buy about two dollars' worth to get your penny to working.

Perhaps like a quarter-cent-a-point bridge.

These philosophers are queer fellows, take Omar Khayyam. He was a tent maker until one of his former associates gave him a job as court astronomer for the Big Shot in Persia, then Omar started in making quite a bit of antiquated whoopee.

Now there is a shoe cobbler who has crashed the portals of publicity in Northampton, Mass. He was the guy who was political advisor of ex-President Calvin Coolidge.

I suspect that he was the man who told him to be "cool", the best advice that anybody could have given him.

Oklahoma is probably the only State in the union who thinks well of hitch-hikers. They elected their governor by one of the largest majorities the State has known. It is interesting to know that he hitch-hiked while making his gubernatorial race.

Andy Payne, another favorite son, ran over the Nation to get recognition for his State.

Will Rogers ran over the Nation and everybody concerned, for Oklahoma.

These boys from the Indian Territory are go-getters.

Find College Students Are Not Bad Now. This would be dandy to slip in the next letter touching the old man. This survey made by the Federal office of education will knock dead some of those "when-I-went-to-school boys".

Charlie Paddock is married and is writing for newspapers and magazines. But alackaday, Charlie's sprinting days are just beginning.

"Well, my boy", growled the village cynic to the newly wedded boy, who stood before him, wreathed in smile. "You are at the end of your troubles".

The boy smiled more in gratitude for the compliment.

On seeing this, the cynic added, "The front end".

The smile faded.

The most miserable task in the course of time is writing a letter from your fathers' dictation, in which he asks the dean of your college to put you to work.

I am wondering who gets the education when a young fellow goes to college—his parents or the young man?

Now comes the story of the guy that read the "Art of Make-up" so that he might patch up a misunderstanding with his lady friend.

One of the favorite comedy teams of the pre-Prohibition days, according to the old-timers, were "Tom and Jerry". It seems as how these two memorable fellows used to be responsible for several of the local puns.

According to the way the barber trade is falling off, our fair village will soon look like the Gillette Boys back home on a vacation.

A college boy in Turkey would naturally go harem-scarem.

Face lotions have been going down since the coming of prohibition.

Five Persons Killed in Peru After Grid Game. The Peruvian-Uruguayan football game was one where everybody concerned took the advice of "fight until hell freezes over" literally. The theme song wasn't "Just a Little Closer", it was too blooming close as it was.

On finishing J. P. McEvoy's "Mister Noodle", I'd suggest that he drag out the "Show Girl" because his collection of telegrams, letters, cutting from Variety, leters from home, column paragraphs, and wise cracks would work better with Dixie Dugan.

We view with alarm the decreasing number of bald-headed barbers.

Slants on the Immorals, ala McIntyre and Ripley:

Rex Carrs has a mole on his left shoulder blade..Did you know that even King Caunte couldn't read Old English, and never saw any....That black magic hasn't any color....That Rin-Tin-Tin's salary always goes to the dogs....Houdini's best trick was escaping gracefully from an average dress suit....That Kublai Khan first played Polo, Marco Polo pretty heavily.....What was it Port said? Did Pompey? I wonder what has become of Julius Caesar, Omar Khayyam, John Barleycorn, Mike Mulligan, "Sweet Geneveive", and quails?....Did you know that cockroaches could be classed among cannibals? Did the Egyptians call Mark Anthony a wop?

Sign in a restaurant: Mary had a little lamb, what will you have? I've found out why they call that famous resort in Mexico Agua Caliente, meaning "Hot Water". It's because Hot Water and the soft soap they use works so well together....What is becoming of the bald-headed barbers, and old mug cases advertising the shop through the class of the clientel.....People with two faces should have to pay double for massages and plastic surgery or would we be face lifting....We find now various people bothered with that recently discovered aiment, known as Hooveritis, caused by too strenuous use of such objects d'appetites as turnips soup and water. The only possible cure is a change of administration, several people are awaiting cure along about 1932.

The first woman Eve was so named probably because her arrival brought on an end of Adam's perfect day.

First Ant, on cracker box: "What's your hurry?"

Second Ant: "Can't you read? It says, "Tear along this edge".

The Sikeston recently married man who slept on a bookcase one night, says he is through with futuristic furniture "from now on".

One might remark that the furniture had the edge on him that time.

A local shop in trying to collect, received the following letter from one much distressed:

"Dear Sir: I have many many bills to settle, so each week I put them all in a hat and draw out one, which I pay. It may be your turn next week, but no more of your threats or I won't put you in the raffle".

That ought to satisfy any banker.

RED CROSS EXPENDS NEARLY $230,000 IN ARKANSAS TO RELIEVE DROUTH VICTIMS

St. Louis, January 10.—Drouth sufferers in Arkansas have received about $230,000 this week from the mid-western area headquarters of the Red Cross. A new grant of $36,200 was announced last night.

Other dispensations announced last night were $600 to Missouri, bringing the State total to $36,700, and $4000 to Texas, which heretofore had received no aid. The amounts are in addition to funds spent by local chapters.

All 75 counties of Arkansas have received aid from the Red Cross, Wm. G. Baxter, Jr., manager of the mid-western area, said.

Many farmers cut brush in summer or early fall because they think it is not likely to sprout again if cut at these times, but it is just as effective to cut it in winter. There will always be some second and even third growth regardless of when it is cut.

Cold-storage eggs may be used quite as satisfactorily as fresh eggs for most cooking purposes in the household. Where economy must be practiced, the tendency is to use fewer fresh eggs during the winter months, because of the advance in price. The less expensive cold-storage eggs help to keep up the supply of this necessary food.

Parties should go slow about criticising landowners for not carrying their tenants through the winter. Of all our citizens the landlord has been the hardest hit for the past several years and he has had a hard time to weather the storms, in fact, most of them have been forced to the wall. High water, no crops, high freight, low prices, the drouth with nothing to sell to pay taxes. And there you are. They have no cash and little, if any credit, so be kind enough to withhold criticism when you know nothing of the facts in the case.

BOYCE EQUIPMENT CO. WILL CELEBRATE McCORMICK DAY

Something new and still a century old will be exhibited in Sikeston January 20 as part of a Centennial Celebration. Boyce Farm Equipment Co made arrangements with the International Harvester Company of America to place on exhibition a replica of the world's first reaper. In rounding out the most marvelous hundred years in all history, 1931 brings the centenary of the reaper. The world may well honor the inventor of the machine that ushered in a new era of agriculture, of progress and of freedom from humanity's age long enslavement to the soil.

On that July day in 1831, when, in a Virginia wheat field, young Cyrus Hall McCormick, then 22 years old gave the world its first successful reaper, began the liberation of the farmer from the grinding toil that yielded such scanty returns. Then and there dawned the Age of Plenty, a golden age, unshadowed by the spectre of ever-present hunger and ever-dreaded famine.

After the reaper, if not directly from it, came the long line of machines whereby agriculture has been changed from the sheerest drudgery to the greatest of all industries. These machines have conquered the wilderness and desert, built new empires, founded new civilizations, set millions of men free to create new industries, converted yesterday's luxury into today's common place comfort.

This old reaper, the forerunner of the new agricultural implements, contained seven basic principles still in use on the present type grain harvester. These may be listed as

1. The straight knife with serrated edge and reciprocal or vibrating motion which cuts the grain.
2. Fingers or guards extending from the platform to prevent the grain from slipping sideways while being cut.
3. The revolving reel which holds the grain against the knife and lay the cut stalks on the platform.
4. Platform behind the knife for receiving the cut grain and holding it until raked off.
5. The master wheel which carries most of the weight of the machine and, through ground traction furnishes power to operate the reel and knife.
6. Forward draft from the right or stubble side by means of shafts.
7. A divider on the left side to separate the grain to be cut from that to be left standing.

DEXTER MAKES BID FOR WILL MAYFIELD COLLEGE

An offer for the removal of Will Mayfield Junior College from Marble Hill to Dexter has been made to the Board of Trustees of the Baptist School by the Chamber of Commerce of Dexter. While the amount of financial assistance which would be given was not divulged, it is said that an inducement was offered.

The proposal was made here at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the college, but no definite action was taken.

Dr. Ray E. York, executive secretary of the board, is to visit Dexter in the near future and discuss the proposal with residents there.

J. W. Jeffries has resigned as president of Will Mayfield, it was announced, but will remain atached to the school as field representative.

The school, it has been announced, will suspend operations today, due to financial difficulties. Suspension will be temporary, however, it is said.

NEGRO BURNED FOR CRIME AT RURAL SCHOOL

Maryville, January 12.—Chained to the roof of the Garrett rural school in which he was alleged to have assaulted and murdered Miss Velma Colter, 19 year old teacher, Raymond Gunn, negro, was burned to death by a mob which made a funeral pyre of the building today.

Gunn was marched into the school house and to the spot where the bruised body of the young teacher was discovered. Those of the throng about him, who were closets, said the negro confessed his guilt.

He was then taken to the roof of the building. He was placed across the ridge-pole. Holes were chopped in the roof and gasoline opured over the floors and on the walls. A member of the mob applied a match.

The above speaks for itself and few comments are necessary. The same sort of justice should be meted out to any man, white or black, who commits such a crime, provided the evidence is conclusive. Here was a black negro who had served a short term in the penitentairy for assaulting a young white woman who was a pupil of the Teachers' College at Maryville, returns to the same community, strips naked, assaults and kills a teacher. The avenging of the crime was terrible, but just.

BANK AT SMITHVILLE, MO., CLOSES AFTER SLOW RUN

Smithville, Mo., January 14.—The Bank of Smithville, succumbing to a slow run of a year's duration, was closed yesterday afternoon by order of its directors. The officers reported to the board that they had no cash on hand.

The closing affects about 2000 depositors with $418,000 in deposits The bank listed in its balance sheet December 10, loans amounting to $436,000. Some resentment was expressed at an alleged whispering campaign that resulted in withdrawals totaling more than $100,000 in the last year. Rumors were alleged to have been spread by those who already had borrowed their limit and had been refused loans from the bank.

The closing leaves the town without a bank. Smithville is in Clay County, about 19 miles north of Kansas City.

Contrary to many beliefs, Dr. G F. Kunz, of the American Museum of Natural History, believes that there is no planet life in the universe other than that on our earth. He bases his idea on 850 meteorities which he has examined after they had fallen on the earth. Thirty-one of 87 known elements have been found in these bodies.

Some choice varieties of evergreens which do not come true from seed may easily be propagated in greenhouses during the winter. Among these are varieties of arbor vitae, boxwood, juniper, retinospora, yew and others. The wood for the cutting is usually in good condition after a few light frosts have checked the growth and it has ripened. Cuttings may be made at any time up to midwinter with good results. Do not cut or handle the wood while it is frozen. The vigorous branches on the sides and near the tops of the trees furnish the best wood for cuttings.

THIS WEEK IN MO. HISTORY

Floyd C. Shoemaker

Imprisonment for debt in Missouri was abolished by act of the General Assembly, approved January 17, 1843, a date which occurs during this week.

Governor Thomas Reynolds, during whose administration (1840-44) this law was passed, was instrumental in obtaining relief for the oppressed debtor. T. Berry Smith, in a biography of Reynolds, gives this sketch of the Governor's attitude:

"The one issue....which appealed to him most strongly, was that pertaining to imprisonment for debt. With all his might and persistence he urged the enactment of a law forbidding such procedure; and though the creditor class of the State were against him, yet he finally triumphed".

It took the people of Missouri 36 years of legislative action to divorce themselves from the idea that a debtor should not be imprisoned for not paying his debts. The first law on debt was passed in 1807 in the Territory of Louisiana, which comprised what is now Missouri. This law, which imposed imprisonment for the insolvent debtor, was amended twice before Missouri became a State.

Not until 1835 was a comprehensive law enacted for the protection of the debtor. In this year, an act was drawn up which described an involved court procedure through which the insolvent debtor was forced to go if he would avoid prison. It was this law to which Gov. Reynolds referred when he denounced the "enormous expense" of seeking freedom through court procedure.

In 1841, the bankrupt law was revised so that "any debtor imprisoned for debt may apply to the courts, offering to deliver all property to his creditors, except wearing apparel for himself and family and ask for the benefits granted by the law of 1835".

Shortly after Governor Reynold's official denunciation of the debt laws in 1842, Thomas B. Hudson of the House, and Benjamin P. Major of the Senate, introduced bills in the Legislature on this subject. The Senate bill was passed by that body December 14, 1842, but the House bill was harrassed by amendment and detained in committee for several weeks. On January 17, 1843, however, the bill was finally approved.

A report of Representative Andrew Alexander's speech before a committee hearing on the debt bill, is fairly indicative of the sentiment of Missourians on debt imprisonment in 1843. He said: "I came here..pledged to wipe from our statute book that relica of barbarian law....that foul blot upon the history of Democratic Missouri. I wish Mr. Chairman, to divorce the unfortunate debtor from the felon."

The old debt laws were not without their amusing aspects. The Jefferson City Times of October 1, 1869, quotes a document just then discovered in St. Louis, dated September 18, 1822, which ordered the imprisonment of Thomas H. Benton, Missouri's great statesman, should he fail to pay a debt.

The order, issued to a constable, demanded the public sale of Benton's property to meet a debt of only sixty-five dollars and forty-two cents. "And for want of sufficient distress", the order reads, "you are commanded to take the body of the said Thomas H. Benton in custory and convey him to the common jail of the county; the sheriff and keeper whereof is hereby required to receive and him safely keep until the said debt and costs be fully paid, or the said Thomas H. Benton be otherwise discharged according to law...."

That the great Missouri Senator did not treat the order with impunity, is testified by the frief endorsement on the back of the order: "Paid.

S. BLOOD, Constable".

OLIVE OIL, ANCIENT FOOD, HIGHLY VALUED TODAY

When the houseife uses olive oil in preparing her company dinner, she can be assured of the sanction of the ancients as well as of the protection afforded her by the Federal Food and Drug Administration in its enforcement of the pure food laws.

Olive oil, one of our oldest foods, is still one of the most esteemed. It was a common food thousands of years before Columbus discovered America, and references to it made in the Old Testament and other early literature. The Greeks used olive oil for food, lighting and sacramental purposes. Homer was not blind to its merits and referred to it in his Iliad as a luxury of the wealthy, prized highly for its value in the heroic toilet. The warriors of Homer's day annointed themselves with oil after the bath and, by 776 B. C., an olive wreath was the victor's prize in the Olympic games.

When madam goes to the store for olive or other salad oils, she should read the labels on the containers carefully in order to distinguish between the different types, says W. B. White, of the Food and Drug Administration's food-control office. Sometimes vegetable oils, such as cottonseed oil, are mixed with olive oil. But a careful reading of the label will enable the buyer to find this out. A housewife who wants pure olive oil should not be satisfied with a cottonseed oil-olive oil mixture. There are many good edible oils on the market—it is simply up to madam to decide which kind she wants and then read the labels to make sure that she gets it.

Remember?

Remember 'way back when you were a litle girl here in Sikeston and the boys of your acquaintance used to talk about what they'd be when they grew up? For a while, the preferance would run to firemen, railway engineers, and such.....and then one lad would say, "Guess I'll run dad's store", and another would remark, "I'm gonna have a drug store, just like pop".

These boys grew up and stepped into their father's shoes. They stayed here in Sikeston. You probably married one of them.

What about your boy? Will he have a grocery store or a shoe store or a drug store or a dry goods store to run like his dad before him? Or will these stores.....when he reaches manhood.....be run by managers appointed by a home office a thousand miles away..... will your boy be forced to migrate to New York or Chicago to look for a job.....AWAY FROM HOME?

It all depends upon whether our independently managed stores remain. It all depends on you buyers....you mothers.

We want the grown folks to be sure to come and bring your children with you.

We are in great and urgent need of someone to come and play the piano for us. Also, will gladly welcome musicians with their musical instruments at every service. We will offer good inducements to someone to furnish music for us at every service. See me about it at once.

THE MULE

The mule he is a funny sight,
He's made of ears and dynamite.
He has a lovely voice to sing,
And makes a noise like everything.
Some folks treat mules with disrespect—
They say they have no intellect;
The mule he tends to his own "biz",
He don't look loaded, but he is.
On mules we find two legs behind,
And two we also find before,
We stand behind, before we find
What the two behind be for.
When we're behind the two behind,
We quickly find what these be for,
So stand before the two behind,
And stand behind the two before.

DRAG LINE CLAIMS LIFE OF YOUNG MAN, 32

Charleston, January 8.—Jimmie Sheppard, 23, was killed at 9:30 o'clock this morning when he fell while oiling the engine of a drag line working on the Mississippi County spillway near Brewers' Lake and his body was horribly mangled by the cable of the drag line.

Sheppard, whose home is in Cunningham, Ky., is believed to have slipped while he was oiling the engine. As he fell against the cable, he reached for the engine to steady himself, but his hand caught the throttle, throwing it wide open and the rapidly traveling cable cut his body to pieces.

Sheppard had been working for the J. J. McCaughey Company, which is building a portion of the spillway, for the past three years. He has been on that job for a year and he and his wife had been living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Nelson on Brewer's Lake. Mrs. Sheppard was visiting relatives in Charleston when the accident occurred.

Besdies his wife, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Sheppard of Cunningham, Ky., four sisters, Misses Bernice, Iony, Oiny and Bonnie May, and five brothers Lawrence, who was employed on the job with him, Thomas, Gib, Dallas and Henry Lee, all of Cunningham.

The body was prepared for burial by the Lair Undertaking Company and will be taken to Cunningham for buria.

TOM DODGE SAYINGS IN MILAN STANDARD

Maybe the reason why the old family album went out of style in homes was because the truth was beginning to hurt.

About the only time a small boy likes to have a cake of soap in his hands is on Hallowe'en.

Dents in the back of a car don't necessarily indicate that the owner is a careful driver. He may be a careless backer.

Maybe the reason some people do not believe in hell is because there are so many substitutions for it right here on earth.

THIS WOMAN HAD TWINS BORN IN ELECTION DAY

A woman at the Frisco depot a few days ago stood in front of the ticket window holding two babies in her arms. She was frantically trying to get to her purse to buy a ticket.

An obliging taxi driver standing near offered to take one of the babies.

"Are these babies twins", he asked the woman.

"Yes", she replied. "They were born on election day and we named one Smith and the other Hoover".

Having secured her ticket she relieved him of the baby.

"Well, I guess I was holding the one named Smith", he said, as he walked away.—West Plains Gazette.

NEW BABY BEEF BULLETIN

Co-operative experiments in calf feeding conducted at Sni-A-Bar Farms, Grain Valley, by these farms the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Missouri Experiment Station have resulted in the development of a new and cheaper method of producing fat baby beef, now in great demand by the American meat consuming public. The result of the experiment is reported in the U. S. D. A. technical bulletin No. 208. A few copies of this bulletin are available for free distribution through the Missouri College of Agriculture.

The experiment deals with methods of fatening calves by the use of creeps, while they are suckling their dams. Spring calves were started on feed when approximately 10 weeks old and fed grain in creeps until weaning time. The results show that wellbred calves which had received grain in creeps weighed approximately 550 pounds at weaning time, or 100 pounds more than similar calves which had not received grain. The grain fed calves were valued at or close to the top of the lightweight cattle market.

The dried fruits—prunes, dates raisins, figs, peaches and apricots—make fine wholesome confections either just as they are or stuffed or chopped up and made into candy. For instance, put through the meat grinder half a pound each of prunes and figs, or figs and seedless raisins, with half a pound of nuts, using a medium knife. Mix together and shape into small balls, rolls, or any other desired shape. Roll in confectioner's sugar and pack in waxed paper in a tin box.

Raising 998 pounds of lint cotton an acre won the championship of Drew County, Arkansas for W. Pace last season. This crop was planted with the hill drop planter, owners of which in other sections have reported perfect stands and increased yields with this newer method. With this planter, cotton seed may be dropped in hills of as many or as few seed as dseired. The group of seeds when dropped are not wadded but deposited over a space of three or four inches. The planters are available for planting either one row or two rows at a time. Nearly half the quantity of seed is saved as compared to older methods and the time for chopping or thinning is reduced two-thirds or more and in many cases this practice which often requires 20 hours or more of man labor an acre may be entirely eliminated. On 20 acres at least thirty days' time is saved which could be spent to advantage in the garden or growing feed for the livestock.

BOTHWELL'S TOMB VIOLATED, PERHAPS BY JEWELL THIEVES

Copenhagen, Denmark, January 7.—The rifling of the sarcophagus of the Earl of Bothwell, third husband of Mary, Queen of Scots, is under investigation.

Police yesterday found the sarcophagus, containing the body of the Earl who died insane in a castle in Zealand on April 14, 1578, broken open and its contents disarranged.

The authorities refuse to discuss the possible motive. It has been reported that jewels belonging to Queen Mary were buried in Bothwell's tomb. There was no evidence that any jewels were found by the disturbers or indeed that anything of great value was buried with Bothwell.

Mary Stuart, daughter of James V of Scotland, married the French dauphin who ruled briefly as Francis II. On his death she returned to Scotland and, becoming Queen, married Lord Darnley. who was murdered, some believ, by Bothwell with Mary's connivance. At any rate, the Scottish nobles rebelled when she married Bothwell. He fled to Norway. She obtained a divorce from Rome. Mary subsequently fell into the hands of Elizabeth of England. She was tried for plotting to take the throne of England and beheaded at Fotheringay castle in 1587.

ANOTHER Girder Is Fitted Into Place

We purposely placed the emphasis on the word "ANOTHER" for in a measure it sums up the secret of continued prosperity . . . Another train load of grain goes to market—another stretch of paving is begun—another employee broke the individual production record—another factory working to capacity—another hundred men added to the force—another and another right down the line and the answer is, prosperity, UNLIMITED.

Let's all work together and insure the prosperity of our city, our state, our country, a program which can result in the prosperity of the individual. Let's plant another acre—build another house—pave another street, buy from your local independent grocers, in other words let's use the ALL AMERICAN ROUTE and go to Contentmentville, the safe, sure way.

PARAGRAPHS FROM THE MONROE COUNTY APPEAL

Press dispatches warn the public to look out for counterfeit stocks. But what is the difference between a counterfeit stock and a genuine stock that has no value, like most of those a gullable public bought when the frenzy was on?

What is the largest American industry in the volume of investment and business? No, you are wrong; it is not the steel industry, the oil industry or the automobile industry. It is the printing and publishing industry. Yet, with all its money and with all its power, this industry hasn't sufficient influence with Congress to induce it to make the Government quit competing with every printing office in the nation.

The kidnapping of that little Busch boy in St. Louis last Thursday calls renewed attention to the need for making short shrift of scoundrels who commit this crime. They should be forced to trial within ten days of their arrest. If convicted, the higher courts should be required to drop everything and give decisions within 30 days if appeals are taken. Everywhere the penalty should be death and it should be inflicted so promptly that the crime, now becoming a favorite in our large cities, would lose some of its attractions.

We confess to bewilderment at the Farm Board's discrimination between animals on the farm and human beings on the farm. It is willing to furnish money with which to buy feed for the animals but will not supply so much as a red cent with which to buy food for the farmer and his family when need of that sort exists, as it does in so many farming communities. Is this further evidence that we live in an era when the dollar, or a thing that brings in the dollar, is exalted above the body, mind and soul of a man, woman or child?

The public owes a bigger debt of gratitude to town and city community chests that it really appreciates. Except that these funds, amounting in the aggregate to a billion dollars, were standing between the unemployed and starvation, there would be such an era of riot, pillage and crime as this nation has never known. Nothing makes men more desperate than their own empty stomachs and the cries of hungry wives and children. Nothing can restrain them under such circumstances, for self-preservation is the first law of nature. Fortunately, the community chest had already become an established institution. All that was needed for the present emergency was proper understanding and the generous response American people always give in time of need. While Government relief measures were of an impracticable nature, those formualted by towns and cities are functioning like clockwork. If anybody is suffering from hunger and cold it is because his wants are not known.

HAY, NOT MANNA, FALLS FROM SKIES FOR ALASKA DEER

The miracle of the manna which fell from Heaven upon the Israelites was repeated recently in Alaska, with a starving herd of deer as the beneficiaries.

Instead of manna, however, the astounded deer saw two bales of hay come tumbling out of the skies every day to furnish food on a barren seashore, according to the American Game Protective Association.

The deer had been driven out of their native forests by an unseasonable snow which hid their food, and sought refuge on the seashore. Here they were on the verge of starvation until the citizens of Juneau and several other towns collected a fund with which to pay an aviator for several trips to the herd.

On each trip the pilot carried a bale of hay on each side of the plane, dropping them overboard beside the deer. The "miracle" is being continued until the deer are able to find natural food in their native forests.

Missouri is first of all States for the number and excellence of opportunities in dairying.

Never put wet shoes on a radiator or stove to dry. Stuff them with crumpled paper or fill them with dry oats, and put them in a warm, not hot, place. High temperatures cau. leather to grow brittle and crack.

The wet bloc should not forget, in the midst of its other activities, to bring to the attention of Congress that by making a simple change in the Volstead law it can at once put 77,364 men back at work, give the farmers a new market for $87,520,827 worth of their products, bring $79,329,000 into the Federal Treasury without raising the income or any other existing tax by one cent, and furnish profitable employment for capital in the amount of $840,681,000 All this could be accomplished by the legalization of beer.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

Pioneer of a new age, prophet of modern times, Benjamin Franklin has been called "the man who lived before his day". Surely the life of no other single individual has been crammed so full of achievement in so many and diverse fields. Washington regarded him as the new nation's foremost statesman. In the fields of diplomacy, letters, science and business, Franklin had few peers. But it is as the philosopher of the "homely virtues" that Franklin has most endeared himself to America. The sound maxims of thrift and wisdom so humanly set forth in his Almanc expound the practical common sense of a practical land. Singularly appropriate is it on the occasion of Franklin's 225th birthday anniversary this month that these homely lessons be taken to heart. The practice of those elemental principles of saving and of thrift cannot fail to establish a firmer sense of values. Their observance will lay a sound foundation for a permanent return to Prosperity.

Saturday THRIFT DAY...

The greatest assurance of personal independence is money in the bank. It is concrete—it it as nearly infallible as anything can be. Hence a Savings Account consistently enlarged forms the logical basis of a program of thrift. As capital grows it may be wisely invested but the foundation of solvency must lie in the Savings Account. It is a shield against unexpected demands, such as illness or accident, it is the one sure friend in time of need.

CAGE SQUADS SPEND BUSY WEEK-END BY ADDING SCALPS FROM CANALOU AND CAIRO

Not content with taking a double-header basketball game from Fredericktown Friday night, the local cage squads split ranks and added a doubleheader Canalou game and St Joseph Catholic High School to their list of victories Saturday night.

Both Canalou games were won by one-point margins, the reserve team boys winning from the Canalou regulars 9 to 8, while Miss Moore's regulars nosed out the Canalou regulars by a single point 11 to 10. Box scores are not available. Prof. Wm. B. Miller piloted the local reserves.

Coach Cunningham and his regulars had their hands full at Cairo where they tackled the St. Joseph high cagers and won in the last period by six points. The score was 24 to 18.

Sikeston drew first blood with a free throw, but the Cairo cagemen evened things up by sinking a basket a few seconds later. The score at the half stood 10-10. Guards Moll and Jones performed with greater efficiency in the closing quarter while the scoring end of the Sikeston machine rolled up the points necessary to defeat the hosts.

Jones for Sikeston carried away high point honors for the evening while J. H. Hayden divided second high with O'Kane of Cairo with six each.

KONJOLA ENDS NEURITIS PAIN

Ten Years Suffering Ended By New Medicine---Stomach Trouble and Constipation Disappear, Too.

MRS. C. T. WEBB

"Neuritis caused me terrible suffering for ten years", said Mrs. C. T. Webb, Route No. 2, Buckner, near Independence. "My neck was stiff and the pains around my heart were terrible. I suffered day and night and could not sleep. Constipation and an acid stomach added to my misery.

"Konjola was the only medicine to bring relief to me. After only four bottles neuritis disappeared, constipation vanished, and my stomach is greatly relieved. I eat and sleep better than I have in ten years. I can't praise Konjola too strongly".

This is not, by any means, an unusual case. There are thousands just like it on file in the Konjola record. But find out for yourself what Konjola is and what it will do. Begin an eight weeks treatment now—today.

Konjola is sold in Sikeston at the Derris Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

MERCHANTS HEAR TRADE DAY REPORT

Ten or twelve members of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce attended the business session set for Wednesday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock at the Armory. The consensus of opinion was that fifty odd merchants participating in the trade stimulating event last Saturday were very much pleased with the stunt. Not only did the idea work to advantage of selling more goods for cash, it had the added effect in some instances of cleaning up old accounts and in bringing current accounts to an early close.

Sentiment was unanimous to sponsor another such stunt, not, however, in the near future. The idea will probably be carried out later this spring or early summer.

Rebate checks amounting roughly to forty per cent of the total will be mailed out this week-end.

President Lyle Malone appointed the following nominating committee which will meet in the near future to select a slate of officers to serve after February 15, 1931: Lee Bowman, Chairman; members, E. C. Matthews, C. E. Brenton, L. M. Stallcup, Ernest Harper, C. H. Denman, C. L. Blanton, Jr., and George A Lough. The list, according to Malone is representative of nearly all major business enterprises, both banks, newspapers and merchants being represented.

The Hospital Committee which recently set as its goal a membership of 90 firms or businessmen each pledging $1.00 per month for maintainance of a room in the Emergency Hospital, reported through John Powell that a total of $33 had been voluntarily subscribed and turned over to the institution. That amount was remitted in December. Since that time $4 more has been turned over to Mr. Powell, he stated before the meeting.

Powell stressed the fact that the committee had been relatively inactive. No personal effort had been put forth to reach the goal of 90 members. C. C. White as chairman of the Hospital Committee is absent, and the suggestion was made that another active chairman be appointed to fill the vacancy, and to put over the campaign.

S. E. MO ATHLETIC CONFERENCE FORMED

Poplar Bluff, January 14.—At a meeting held at Dexter last Saturday, of representatives of all six high schools holding membership in the Southeast Missouri High School Athletic conference, officers for the present year were elected, a football schedule for the fall of 1931 was arranged and important matters relative to association affairs were discussed.

C. C. Conrad, superintendent of schools at Charleston, was elected president of the association, George Loughead, superintendent of schools at Poplar Bluff was named vice-president and R. O. Hawkins, principal of the Jackson High School was elected secretary and treasurer.

High schools at Jackson, Poplar Bluff, Charleston, Dexter, Caruthersville and Cape Girardeau hold membership in the conference. The football schedules call for a game between each of the six conference schools. Rules of the Association are the same as those of the State High School Athletic Association.

An association track meet was authorized to be held next spring. The track at Southeast Missouri Teachers' College will be used if possible—otherwise the meet will be held at Charleston. A committee was appointed to select a date.—American Republican.

Miss Gladys Conley has been confined to her bed the past several days suffering with sore throat.

GREENHOUSE ADDITION ALMOST COMPLETE

A combination office, display and work room housed in a building 20x40 feet is nearing completion at the Sikeston Greenhouse. The addition is part of the expansion program recently decided upon by Wm. F. Woehlecke, owner and manager.

The display and office building is being constructed at the northeast corner of the grounds fronting on New Street. It will consist of a stucco building 20x40 feet. The front half will house special flowers in season, being in effect a sales and display room. Plate glass windows will front on New Street. A cooling and work room is being constructed under half of the building. Additional work quarters will be housed in the east half of the ground floor opening upon another "greenhouse" still to be constructed.

The latter will consist of a glass-roofed house 70 or 75 feet long running east and west and connecting the present greenhouse plant proper with the office building. It will serve the florist as an auxiliary growing house, carrying transplanted flowers, pot flowers and other items reset from the main starting and growing houses.

The whole idea, according to Mr. Woehlecke, is to facilitate service at the least expenditure of labor. When completed in time for the spring season, the Sikeston greenhouse plant will carry 5000 square feet under glass, and will be able to serve the entire Southeast Missouri territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Woehlecke came to Sikeston about 18 months ago, accepted a run-down plant and in that length of time have established the proving his ability as a first class flor- Sikeston plant as one of the foremost in this section of the State. Besides ist, Mr. Woehlecke has established himself firmly as a landscape artist and horticulturist who "knows his business".

Miss Eula Hahn, who has been pursuing the stenographic course at the Chillicothe Business College, has accepted a position as stenographer with State Senator Ralph Wammack Miss Hahn, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hahn, left Chillicothe Tuesday for Jefferson City to take up the duties of her position.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Standard is authorized to announce Pleas Malcolm as candidate for Superintendent of Schools of Scott County, subject to the action of the voters at the election April 7, 1931.

The Red Cross will be calling on you soon for a donation. Do your best to help out at this time to feed the hungry. Some talk is going around that half of the money goes to the National headquarters, and those with this belief say the will not give, but are willing to help buy food for local people. Fifty cents of every membership goes to the National Red Cross, the balance remains for local use. If you buy one dollar membership, half of it goes away, but if you take a ten dollar membership, only fifty cents of it goes to Washington.

• • •

Seed corn of high germinating qualities will no doubt be scarce this year. Farmers who are contemplating using their own seed should have it germinated before planting time Remove several kernels from the tip, butt and end of 20 or 30 ears of corn, send this amount to your County Agent who will have it germinted for you and results returned to you. This may save much time in labor in not having to replant your crop.

• • •

The Democratic majority in the House at Jefferson City are the same type of high binders and grafters as have been in charge of that branch of State Government for several years. Each Democratic member has been allowed three clerks, the Republicans one, besides divers and sundry stenographers, doorkeepers, etc., etc., without end. And we had hoped for relief from a Democratic Legislature.

• • •

This is to caution housewives to be careful who they give cans of fruit, jars of preserves, or anything out of their supplies. It matters not what line of talk they put up, send them to Red Cross headquarters where their cases will be investigated and relief given if worthy. Recently a party who said he lived up Morley way, made a house-to-house canvass in the Southwest part of Sikeston and in nearly every instance got a can of goods of some sort. Friday of last week, a man made the rounds in Ward One with fair success only. He finally told one woman he was from Kentucky—and there you are.

If we were a Democratic Senator at Jefferson City, we would vote with the Republicans in preference to having Carter M. Buford, and his Casey-Kinney bunch run the Democratic State Senate. Buford is a disgrace, while Casey and Kinney are disturbers when they can't rule.

• • •

It is said that the Senate will be asked to enact laws to curb election expenses. In principle, such legislation is wise, to the end that election day may not deteriorate into an occasion for auctioning off a place of public trust to the highest bidder. Practically considered, however, a campaign covering an entire State is a business matter of no small magnitude, and capital is required in the performance. What was done to obtain the office, and not the cost of doing it, is the important question.

• • •

President Hoover has called on the Country to subscribe Ten Million Dollars to the Red Cross to feed the starving Americans. The money will be raised all right, but we are just wondering why he didn't ask Congress to head the list with a good strong subscription.

• • •

The talk in certain sections of Stoddard County of running the negro farmers out of the County, is unthinkable. It is stated they are taking the place of white men who left the farm for the city, but now being without a job, return to find negroes as tenants. The idea is ridiculous. We feel certain these negroes are behaving themselves, have given all the aid possible to help the landlord and should be protected by both the landlord and the law. Every right thinking man should make it his business to give these folks, who were brought into the community, a square deal.

Tariffs And Economic Anarchy

Back in 1880 Gen. Hancock defeated himself for the Presidency of the United States by his famous sentence: "The tariff is a local issue". In the sense in which the General used the words it is possible he was right; but today that sentiment is completely wrong. The tariff is not a local issue; it is not even a national issue; it is an international issue which should be handled by some kind of international technique.

In the tariff act that was recently passed in Washington, 890 different items were increased, affecting imports from nearly every country in the world. Sugar from Cuba, watches from Switzerland, carpets and rugs from Asiatic countries, lumber from Canada, olives and citrus fruits from Italy and Spain, chemicals from Germany, earthenware from Belgium—the list could be indefinitely extended. Following the passage of the act there came from every corner of the world a volume of angry protest and retaliation which has scarcely diminished to this day. The act was a blow struck by one nation at the economic stability of 60 nations. It was the blind, desperate effort of a great country to hang on to the top of the ladder by kicking at every other country.

Take the case of Switzerland, for example. The Swiss Republic is to a large extent a nation of watchmakers. She has no natural resources; she imports all her raw materials. She has been shipping to the United States approximately $11,000,000 worth of watches and watch movements every year. Our new tariff bill closed the doors of many of her factories. A handful of men, sitting around a table in Washington in an atmosphere heavy with ignorance and cigar smoke, crippled the chief industry of a country 3000 miles away.

This is not world order. It is anarchy. Even from the standpoint of our own self-interest it is catastrophe. For Switzerland was buying from us $45,000,000 worth of goods a year. With her principal industry disorganized, and with the ramifying effect of that collapse upon her own purchasing power, with what funds will she buy form us in the future, even if she now had the desire?

The old doctrine of "each for himself and God for us all" which Canning enunciated a hundred years ago after the wreck of the Holy Alliance does not fit into a twentieth century world. A national tariff act, passed in utter disregard of its consequences abroad, is today an anachronism. It is a throwback to an age of savage conquest. The whole question of tariffs belongs in the international field. It is a problem for common counsel and joint consideration. As a weapon of attack to be used by one nation against the rest, it should be classified wiht TNT and poison gas The world must submit to economic as well as military disarmament.—From an Address by Raymond B. Fosdick.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL FROM MATTHEWS

Measles are thick in Matthews now.

Miss Dixie Hicks is visiting relatives in New Madrid.

Mr. and Mrs. Jere Caverno of Sikeston were Matthews visitors Sunday.

Little Mary Lou Stroud is recovering from an attack of bronchial pneumonia.

Mrs. Dora Waters is very ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dimple Gurley.

R. J. Stroud and Charles Lindelsmith left Friday on a motor trip thru the South.

Will Dunlap returned Monday from a three weeks visit with relatives in Sarsas, Miss.

Mrs. Gordon Stroud and sister, Miss Margie Burch, shopped in Sikeston Monday.

Clyde Williford returned from St. Louis Saturday, where, until recently, he has been employed.

The friends of James Huls, Sr. will be glad to hear that he is again able to be at his business again.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Caruthers of near Sikeston were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Caruthers, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crosby and little daughter of Holyoke, Colo., are here visiting Mrs. Crosby's parents and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dance and children of Decatur, Ill., arrived Saturday for a two weeks' visit with the latter's mother, Mrs. Achley.

Miss Verna King and brother Robert, motored to Sikeston Saturday. Miss Nota Watkins accompanied them home to spend the week-end.

We were sorry to hear of the illness of Billy Robert at Central College in Fayette, Mo., and are trusting nothing of a serious nature is wrong.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Buchanan of Sikeston visited Mr. and Mrs. J. R. King Friday and attended the basketball game at the new gym, between Lilbourn and Matthews.

We are glad to report that Forest Ball is able to be out on crutches. Mr. Ball sustained an injury on his leg in an automobile accident some few weeks ago and it was necessary to have an operation, which has healed sufficiently for him to be out.

One of our Matthews ladies who attended "All Quiet on the Western Front", at Malone Theatre, Sikeston, Tuesday night, said she never wanted to hear anyone speak of the glories of war. If there are any glories, she is too dumb to appreciate them.

Mrs. J. H. Dickerman was called to Golconda, Ill., Friday on account of the serious illness of her brother. Miss Genevieve Dickerman and Glenn Waters accompanied her as far as Cairo.

The Matthews basketball team went to Cape Girardeau Tuesday night to play the College Preps. Owing to the severity of the snow storm, part of the boys were delayed on the road and our boys were defeated. Those going from here were compelled to stay all night as traveling was an impossibility.

The people of Matthews brought a generous pounding to the Methodist church Sunday for their pastor and family for which they are very thankful. We are proud of the wonderful attendance at Sunday school and hope to see many new faces next Sunday. We also want to thank Richwood for their generous offering.

Supt. G. D. Englehardt was a guest at a luncheon given at the Marquette Hotel in Cape Girardeau, Saturday. Mr. Englehardt is one of the committeemen to make arrangement for the District Teachers' Meeting next October and the luncheon was given in honor of those who are on the program to provide for the entertainment.

Much praise is due L. D. Waters and Clifford Sutton for the able way they have handled the Red Cross Chapter here. Hundreds of people have been helped, but funds are fast giving out and now the heavy snow will make it a serious question to handle. This work is a noble work but those who have to meet the requests for help is placed sometimes in a very bad position, to just how to act for the best. The people of this place should give these two men their loyal support in helping them discharge their duty instead of finding fault with their method of distribution.

KONJOLA ENDS RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Out Stomach Trouble and Neuritis--Ex Marine and War Veteran Gives Praise.

MR. WILLIAM R. FRY

"I have been crippled for nearly twelve years with rheumatism and neuritis", said Mr. William R. Fry, former United States Marine, living at R. F. D. No. 3, Ola, Arkansas. "I believe that I contracted these ailments during my eighteen months service in the Marine Corps during the War. My legs hurt me frightfully and my ankles became swollen to twice their normal size. My knees were so stiff and swollen that I had to walk with a cane. My stomach troubled me and I lost weight and strength.

"In eight weeks Konjola did me a world of good. After twelve bottles, the swelling in my limbs disappeared. I am free from pain in my arms, back, and limbs, and no longer need a cane. I have gained twelve pounds in weight. I give Konjola all the credit for my new health".

Taken over a period of from six to eight weeks, Konjola can do for you just what it did for Mr. Fry. Give Konjola a trial.

Konjola is sold in Sikeston at the Derris Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FROGS IN HAWAII RANK AS "LIVESTOCK'

Frog culture is a newcomer to the livestock industry in the Hawaiian Islands. The Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture recently organized two boys' 4-H Frog Clubs to encourage frog farming.

After studying the market for frog legs and learning that the Honolulu market alone could handle 6000 pairs of frog legs a week at 20c a pair, the Extension Service organized clubs in west Hawaii and on the island of Kauai. Marketing specialists considered this demand sufficient to make frog raising a profitable enterprise. Other clubs will be organized.

The agricultural experiment station imported two species of frogs into Hawaii a few years ago because they feed on certain insect pests. They proved worthy insect fighters and likewise acquired a wide reputation for the cooking quality of their hind legs. The natives call these frogs, "mountain chickens". The club members plan to have a frog show this winter in conjunction with the annual poultry show. It will be the first show of its kind in the Territory and possibly the first in the United States.

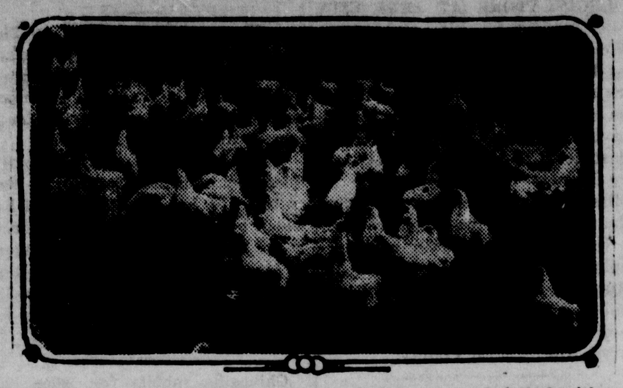
MISSOURI PLAN SAVES CHICKS



It has been estimated that one-third to one-half of chicks raised in hap-hazard fashion die before they reach the age of ten weeks, says County Agent A. J. Renner. A small percentage of this mortality is unavoidable, but farmers who follow the Missouri Plan of Growing Healthy Chicks raise approximately nine-tenths of their chicks to maturity. The essential practices used in this method of raising chicks are to hatch eggs or buy chicks before May 1, raise on clean fresh range, feed a growing ration, brood each hatch separately, separate cockerels and pullets, and maintain roomy sanitary quarters.

Early hatched chicks are more profitable. They grow faster and mature more quickly. The cockerels reach broiler weight while the price is comparatively high and the pullets usually come into production in advance of cold weather, when higher egg prices prevail. Earlier pullets are generally heavier in weight at maturity and they produce larger eggs.

Another advantage of early hatching is that the young stock is less likely to become infested with intestinal parasites or infected with coccidiosis. Investigations show that worm eggs and coccidia, even though they are taken into the digestive tract of the chicken, are not as virulent unless they have remained for a month or more in the moist, warm soil.

Although a small number of pullets come into production when they are 4½ to 5 months of age, the majority of them do not lay before they are 7 to 9 months old. This means that the heavy breeds (Barred Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Qrpingtons) should be hatched early in March, and the light breeds (Leghorns and Anaconas) in April.

It is easier to raise chicks if they are all hatched at the same time. This may necessitate the purchase of additional incubators or baby chicks. On many farms the expense of incubators is more than met by the sale of baby chicks before and after the home hatch.

Details of this plan of chick raising will be discussed at a County-wide chick meeting which is being arranged for Thursday, January 29 at Benton.

CHICKEN MEETING JANUARY 29

There is trouble ahead if you raise your chicks where the old hens run or where chicks were brooded last year, says County Agent Renner. Chicks raised on such grounds usually become diseased, grow slower, the cockerels do not reach breeding age early and the pullets fail to come into production in the fall when eggs are of the highest prices.

How to dodge this trouble and many other helpful points in baby chick production ill be explained at the baby chick meeting Thursday, January 29 at Benton. County Agent Renner and Harold Canfield of the Missouri College of Agriculture will discuss the most satisfactory methods of poultry growing.

"HAMMERS AND SAWS" BUT NO KNOCKING ON FARM PROGRAMS JANUARY 22-24

The pigs averaged 190 pounds when 6 months old. The feed eaten by the sow and pigs up to that time was 66⅔ bushels of corn, 1000 pounds mill feed, and 300 puonds of tankage. The total feed cost was $93.83, the feed cost for each 100 pounds gain being $6.17. The pigs were sold at $9.75 per hundred pounds, and showed a profit of $46.17 after deducting all expenses.

These pigs were farrowed in a modified A hog house and raised on green fresh ground free from worms. Two hog house building demonstrations have been arranged by County Agent Renner Thursday, January 22, at R. Q. Black's farm west of Oran at 10:00 a. m. The other meeting at Sikeston on Saturday, January 24, at 9:00 a. m. In both cases farmers are requested to bring their hammer, saw and square so that they can help construct a house which is recommended for Southeast Missouri conditions. R. W. Oberlin, Extension Engineer of the Missouri College of Agriculture will assist the County Agent in these meetings.

A shallow flat glass or earthenware baking dish with partitions is a great convenience for warming up small portions of different leftover vegetables. Grease the plate with butter or other fat, and put each kind of vegetable in a compartment by itself. Use a white sauce on one, buttered crumbs on another, and perhaps parsley, butter, salt and pepper on a third. A little cream to moisten one of the vegetables may be used if you have no white sauce on hand. Put the dish in the oven long enough to heat through thoroughly, and serve. Some members of the family will ask for one vegetable, and some another, so that all will be used, and all will be delicious.

LESS-USED MEAT CUTS AND THRIFT

The thrifty homemaker, who is at the same time a good cook, is quick to recognize the advantage of the less-demanded meat cuts. The meat dishes suggested below by Inez S. Wilson, home economist, fill the demands of the good cook and the good manager.

Hot Spiced Tongue

Boil, skin and trim a good-sized beef tongue. Rub the surface well with one-half teaspoon ginger and one teaspoon allspice. Slice a small onion and fry it in butter. Dredge the tongue with flour and brown it in the onion seasoned butter. Put in a casserole. Make a sauce by blending one teaspoon flour with the fat in the pan and adding one cup stock, the juice of one lemon and one-half cup seeded raisins. Pour this sauce over the tongue and bake thirty minutes.

Breaded Breast of Lamb

Cook a breast of lamb in water for forty-five minutes or until tender. Drain, remove the bones and press under a heavy weight until cold. Cut into pieces convenient for serving. Dip each piece in melted butter or salad oil. Season with salt and pepper, then dip in fine crumbs, and fry in fat until nicely browned.

Meck Geese

Parboil a leg of pork and remove the skin. Rub with butter, sprinkle with powdered sage, salt, pepper, bread crumbs and finely minced onion. Roast in a moderate oven until tender and nicely browned. Bake a well-seasoned bread dressing in the pan with the pork. Serve with fried apple rings.

It is said that certain ready-mixed oil and water paints are "fireproof" but no paint makes wood really fireproof, though some paints resist fire more than others. Fire-retarding paint should contain as little oil as possible, and lead and zinc pigments should be largely replaced by fusible incombustible, and insoluble substances. Most substances that have fire-retarding qualities are soluble in water and soon leach out of paint exposed to the weather. Powdered boric acid makes paint more resistant to fire for a short time.

ABYSSINIAN DEBTORS CHAINED TO CREDITORS FOR LENGTH OF CLAIM

Addis Ababa, January 10.—The chains of debt are something more than a figure of speech in Abyssinia. The person who cannot or will not pay is shackled to his or her creditor—and the bonds are not severed until the debt is discharged. Sometimes these business unions last for months. One who guarantees a debt sometimes suffers the same penalty, and the debtor, guarantor and creditor make a weird trio as they clank thru the streets.

The markets of Seattle are model in many respects. They are owned and operated by the municipality and they are so unusual that they are frequetly visited by tourists who are often tempted to buy, although they have little need for anything in the food line. By far the greater number of tradespeople are Orientals who do everything to make their goods attractive. Great piles of vegetables are to be seen all scrupulously clean and arranged in order. Most of these are kept wet as a protection from the heat and to make their appearance more attractive. The noise and chatter here is intense made by the salespeople calling the attention of the passersby to their goods. A separate part of the market is devoted to the native farmers which is almost as attractive and less noisy.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF SIKESTON TRADE TERRITORY

An idea of the ideal location of Sikeston as a trading center can be gained from the "trade area" map above. It accounts in part at least for the tremendous crows which participated last Saturday in Sikeston's first big trade day. No small part of its success, however, is due to the many types of business, furnishing houses, wholesale and retail shops, and the list of professional services at hand for the convenience of the territory.

Dairymen Find Profit In Equipment

Members of Colorado dairy herd improvement associations are investing in new equipment for profit according to a recent report of the State supervisor. One farmer installed a new cream separator in view of the fact that tests on his old separator showed that he was losing nearly $70 a year. His neighbor put in a new gasoline engine to get more satisfactory service from his milking machine and also to run his cream separator. Another farmer in the same association installed steel stanchions for his small calves. Two farmers in other associations have just completed modern barns for their herds while another farm was being equipped with a new milking machine.

4 ROMEOS ARE SNOWBOUND IN TUESDAY BLIZZARD

Four Sikeston romeos and as many maidens in distress were snowbound in real True Story style last Tuesday night while enroute to the respective home of the girls some eight or nine miles southeast of Sikeston.

The four resourceful lads were none other than Earl Ward, Ward Bratton, Shriley Hopper and Bland Wright. They earned the right to claim resourcefulness before the four maidens, the Fletcher and Crandall sisters were safely delivered to their homes.

The Crandall sisters and the Fletcher girls might have arrived home safely without the aid of the four gallants, but that would have spoiled the story. Our story has its beginning at the Malone Theatre. The feature Tuesday may of may not have evoked the proper frame of mind.

To begin with a blizzard of real proportions was raging. The eight will swear freely to that—they probably did before the night had spent itself.

Both cars, that of the Fletcher girls and one driven by Hopper first got stuck about one mile from the W. L. Bohanan home. That was at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. The Bohanan family, being good natured arose and built a fire. The travelers were warmed and then trugged thru additional miles of snow and wind to the home of R. Q. Brown.

Brown repeated the Bohanan hospitality and offered his automobile in which the footsore, cold and more or less tired group pushed, pulled and tugged along until the girls were delivered safe and sound to their respective homes. The Crandall home was reached about 4:30 a. m. Wednesday, and the travelers there decided to bunk for the night, bolstered considerably by warmth, a hot breakfast and the fact that journey's end had been reached.

The boys, however, had barely tasted of trials and tribulations. They were 7 miles from home. Their car was stuck in a snowdrift, and to top it all off, the radiator had frozen. Teams and a willing spirit worked wonders and the Chevy coach, vintage '29, finally reached the Sikeston sandhill.

There it spluttered and stopped, and from that point the boys walked to town, secured a truck and finally were towed into the city.

Misses Ella and Verna Heisserer and friends of near Brown Salcedo attended a dance near Matthews last Saturday night.

The Woman's Club will hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. R. E. Bailey, 305 Dorothy Street, Tuesday afternoon, January 20, with Mrs. Effie Hunter in charge. A full membership is requested.

Charlie Mitchell, who returned from a visit near Buffalo, N. Y., the latter part of the week, reports Southeast Missouri in much better fix, in every way, than the agricultural sections that he passed through. In Ohio he says farmers have been hauling water to drink and for stock for many months.

MRS. HEISSERER HONORED WITH BIRTHDAY PARTY SUN.

A birthday dinner was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heisserer of Brown Spur last Sunday in honor of the latter, it being her birthday anniversary. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gruen, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Geska, and children, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Frey, Mr. and Mrs. John Hodges and children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomason and son, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Heisserer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Fletcher and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Schuehart and children, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Klingle and daughter, Katherine McRay, Mr. and Mrs. Irby Owens and children. The day was greatly enjoyed by all. In the evening a group of girls and boys surprise her, which was folowed by a dance.

BLIZZARD ADDS TO SUFFERING FROM COLD

A blizzard, which Tuesday night whipped a fine snow into fantastic swirls, and sifted the white stuff into unexpected places brought the first tinge of real winter to this district when the mercury dropped to two points above zero.

Traffic was only temporarily halted on highways, roads and city streets. Gangs of highway maintainance men equipped with tractors and scrapers cleared the way within 24 hours and normal travel was again possible. Roads are slippery in places.

Only one major accident was reported. A Carson transfer truck skidded at the Malone Theatre corner Tuesday evening about 5:30 o'clock and crashed into a parked sedan owned by Frank W. Van Horne.

Fears
are not as convincing as history---and the world hasn't come to an end!

A year ago a financial cyclone struck the United States. Inflated values became deflated bargains. The Bugaboo of Business Pessimism stalked abroad. His groans froze the blood of American Leadership and a good many people sold themselves so completely to Blueness that they have not yet ceased to show surprise each morning to see the Sun rise in its accustomed place.

A good story is going the rounds. A large and rambunctious bass went to live in an aquarium. In the tank next door, separated only by a partition of clear glass, were some small, fat appetizing minnows. The bass made a lunge at the minnows and bumped his fool nose against the clear glass. Several times a day thereafter whenever his appetite for minnows grew strong he bumped his nose again and again. Then he stopped. Even a fish won't keep on being a fool.

But one day the clear glass partition was removed. The bass, remembering his bumped nose, made no attempt to gobble up a minnow. The minnows swam all around in perfect freedom unmolested by the hungry bass—for you see the Big Bass had sold himself on the fact that business was bad. The Big Bass had bumped his nose. He had become a Business Pessimist.

Many business people are like the Big Bass. They have let the glass partition of business depression stand between them and prosperity. After a few feeble efforts to break through the partition they have taken it for granted that the barrier is permanent.

This great country of ours has gone through dozens of off years and has emerged each time richer and stronger than before. Watch history repeat itself!

ADVERTISING IS THE BEST BARRIER REMOVER

The world isn't coming to an end! On every side news is more optimistic. America is not at heart pessimist. One hundred and fifty million people are still living, breathing, working in America. Savings banks have more money on deposit than ever before. Money for business is cheap and plentiful. There are 6800 people in Sikeston who must and are going to buy thing this year. There are many times that number in the Sikeston territory.

The live aggressive business man knows that this business will go to him who goes after it most efficiently and who handles it best. Advertising, the greatest single force in American business, has not lost its inherent force, its power and its usefulness. It is needed now more than ever before. But the conditions call for Greater Discrimination in its purchase and in its use. The Advertising Dollar must show its leadership in a speedy business recovery. Not lavishness, but wisdom, must be its guiding force. It must be alert and optimistic, eager to serve, yet wise in choice. More is expected of the Advertising Dollar than ever befor—and it can do more than ever before.

Advertisers have learned in the days of "dollar discrimination" to depend on the Twive-a-Week Sikeston Standard.

The Twiee-a-Week Sikeston Standard through dominant coverage is first in proven results.

SECOND RED CROSS DRIVE IMPERATIVE SAYS NATIONAL CHAPTER IN TELEGRAM

A message received last Monday by local Red Cross officers asks the participation of the Scott County Chapter in a second drive for funds to carry out relief measures in the district and drought-stricken area generally

The telegram:

St. Louis, January 12

C. E. Brenton, Chm. Scott County Chapter, American Red Cross:

Greatly increased demands during last ten days have made imperative immediate campaign for Red Cross relief fund to meet emergency situation in parts of twenty-one States in drought-stricken area. Quotas based on minimum of ten million dollars assigned chapters throughout nation by telegram tonight. Your Chapter should continue determined effort to secure local contributions as your part of this national effort.—William M. Baxter, Jr.

Plans are now being formulated to carry out the instructions. Mr. Brenton was emphatic in his statement to local critics with reference to sending money out of town.

"Not one cent of this money will leave the Scott County Chapter. The Chapter wants it definitely understood that the National Chapter has returned for local use many times the amount sent to headquarters in membership dues. We have used up local contributions long ago, and for the past several weeks have used nothing but funds contributed by the National Association". Brenton is endeavoring to stop the whispering campaign of uninformed persons who insist that National headquarters receive half of all contributions. That is not correct. Fifty cents of each MEMBERSHIP whether $1 or $500 is sent to National headquarters. Many times that amount has been sent back to assist the local chapter in alleviating distress and suffering.

Much of the criticism of Red Cross work comes through misunderstanding, local officials believe. To correct the impression that very little assistance is being rendered the following condensed report is submitted for publication:

A total of 435 families or 2500 persons have been given assistance, either fuel, groceries, clothing or all three.

Cash spent $1000.

Clothing and food donated dispensed the present situation amounts to $2600.

All officers, C. E. Brenton, County committeemen and women, assistants and clerks have donated their services. Misses Elizabeth Stallcup and Myra Tanner have recently been added to the force to assist in investigating cases and preparing reports.

John Young last week accepted the position of Chairman of the Sikeston branch office. He will be asssited by J. F. Cox, Frank W. Van Horne and Earl Malone in the unemployment situation which now prevails. In addition to this force of officers and clerks, many persons have donated trucks, time and labor to haul wood and to assist in the work of giving relief.

A plan for raising additional funds has been suggested and is in process of being worked out in detail. Caruthersville and Malden were first in the district to hit upon the plan of asking salaried men and women about town to donate one day's wages per month to relieve suffering. A similar plan is being worked out here by a committee which originated under the auspieces of the Sikeston Lions Club. The committee is to meet Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Scott County Milling Company, and includs the following: Art Wallhausen, chairman; members, Lee Bowman, Joe Sarsar, Bill Sensenbaugh, W. H. Huters, G. J. Phillips, Pat Nonan, John Fisher and others to be named later.

The idea simmers down to this: Those who have steady jobs can best afford to assist those who are unemployed, and who as a result of unemployment must be aided. The idea will be presented in greater detail next Monday.

FRIDAY IS ALUMNI NIGHT AS CHARLESTON BLUEJAYS PREPARE TO BATTLE LOCAL CAGEMEN

Whenever Charleston and Sikeston meet in any athletic event, there's "sumpin' doin' " Teams which ordinarily play haphazard football or basketball, or perform naturally in track events "go crazy" and do the unexpected. For that reason, Coaches John Harris Marshall and Cunningham expect almost anything to happen here Friday night when the Bulldogs give battle to visiting Charleston Bluejays.

In addition to renewing old time rivalries, the evening has been designated "alumni" night. Old grads former cage stars boys and girls, are especialy invited to be present.

The two Sikeston squads are more or less hopped up over their recent week-end string of five straight victories, and no less than a Bluejay feather will do. However, ten Bluejays will be equaly determined to take a bit of Bulldog fur as a memento, so there you are.

Cunningham does not believe in advertising his starting lineup. Whatever combination is strongest at any particular game time starts. Other players ride the bench. Starters, however, surmised from previous games might include the following: Daniels Cox, J. H. and Anderson Hayden and Jones.

While Miss Moore has not divulged her opening quintet the following will possibly see action as starters: Forwards, Andres and Sells; centers, Conrad and Frey; guards, Albritton and York.

A special short entertainment is being planned immediately after the games. Miss Madge Davis and her school orchestra will furnish music.

ANOTHER BOY SCOUT TROOP ORGANIZED

The Men's Bible Class of the Methodist church last Sunday voted to sponsor another Boy Scout troop in Sikeston. H. E. Dudley will act as chairman of the movement.

The Sikeston District Scout Committee will meet Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Missouri Utilities Office to organize and plan work for 1931. Among other items to come before the committee are plans for a summer camp, the organization of more troops and election of officers to serve until January, 1932.

An area meeting is scheduled to be held January 25 at Poplar Bluff. The business meeting of the Area Council is to convene at 3 o'clock at the Court House, and a social program at 5:15 o'clock.

A banquet is to be served at the latter function to which Area leaders and their wives are invited.

Mrs. Ada Vaughn returned to her home at Oran, Wednesday.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Louis Ferrell has been suffering with a severe spell of neuritis.

We are glad to report that little Tommy Roberts, who has been quite ill is some better. Tommy is suffering with ear trouble, the after effects of scarlet fever.

The following attended the Missionary Institute for the Cape Girardeau District held at Morley Wednesday: Rev. and Mrs. Bates, Mrs. J. N. Ross, Mrs. Ernest Harper, Mrs. Lacy Allard, Mrs. Clarence Felker, Mrs. Wallace Applegate and Miss Florence Baker. On account of the condition of the roads, only about fifty were in attendance.

DOES ANYONE KNOW MARTHA WILANS?

The local Red Cross office is in receipt of a letter from Martha Wilans, requesting assistance. Miss or Mrs. Wilans claims to live on the corner of Dorothy and William Streets, but the two run parallel. To date special investigators have been unable to locate the Wilans case, and the Red Cross is anxious to assist.

If you know where Wilans live, please get in touch with John Young at Red Cross headquarters, phone 526, Peoples Bank Building.

XMAS STREET LIGHTS ARE PLACED IN STORAGE

Christmas is officially over. Green and red and blue lights, which for 30 days reminded one constantly of the Christmas festival, were removed Monday and Tuesday this week by workmen for the Missouri Utilities Company.

Mrs. Lee Bowman will entertain with bridge, Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hirschberg and little daughter will occupy the Baker property recently vacated by C. C. Rose.

THRILLING AIR FIGHTS IN "HELL'S ANGELS" COST $2,000,000 TO FILM

"Hell's Angels", the most expensive and most talked about film-drama of all time, will be the deluxe atraction at the Malone Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

Nearly three years in the making, and bearing an overhead cost of approximately $4,000,000, this lavish air-thriller is the screen sensation of the new era of talkies.

Howard Hughes, the 25-year-old producer and director of "Hells' Angels", has shattered all records in time and money spent on a single picture. His prodigal outlay is discussed wherever films are shown, and fans everywhere are eager to view the first multi-million dollar talkie.

It is more than three years since "Hell's Angels" was first launched—as a silent super. Subsequently the cast and story were revamped, and all of the non-flying sequences re-filmed, with sound and dialogue.

Ben Lyon, James Hall and Jean Harlow are co-featured in the leading roles and are supported by such well-known players as John Darrow. Lucien Prival, Jane Winton, Lena Malena, Douglas Gilmore, Stephen Carr, Tommy Carr, Pat Somerset, Granville Divis, Liso Gora, Wyndham Hall and others.

Approximately 137 aviators, and as many mechanics, including nearly every stunt flyer and ex-war ace available in America, participated n the sky action of "Hell's Angels" which alone required 18 months to record.

Exactly 87 planes, including 40 true war-type ships, both German and Allied, took part in Hell's Angels".

A Zeppelin and a giant German Gotha bombing plane also figure prominently in mile-high action above the clouds. This is the largest air fleet ever assembled to perform in a private enterprise.

Ray Marshall is on a ten-day business trip to Tennessee.

The Auxiliary of the American Legion will have their next meeting at the home of Mrs. C. L. Blanton, Jr., Wednesday evening. All members are urged to be present.

The Loto party at the Marshall Hotel Wednesday afternoon was enjoyed by a large number of ladies. Mrs. Frank Noonan will be the hostess for next Wednesday afternoon.

French and English syndicates have recovered more than $250,000,000 in bullion from the wrecks of treasure ships in spite of the dangers and treachery of ocean waters.

Floyd Foght, 18 months old, received more publicity in New Orleans newspapers for several days recently than anyone else in the city. First, he swallowed a 3-inch live gold fish from the family gold fish bowl. He was hurried to a hospital and his life saved. Soon after he was brought back home, he opened the family bird cage and tried to swallow the canary whole, his mother getting to him just in time. There's nothing vegetarian about this youngster.

CLEANUP PROGRAM ON RED CROSS PLAN

Plans have been worked out by Jno. Young, Sikeston Red Cross chairman, to provide work for unemployed in cleaning up Harts' cemetery and the Miner graveyard, it was announced Thursday morning.

Both cemeteries are in need of a thorough cleaning up program. More than 600 graves have been allowed to run down and overgrow with bushes, shrubs, young trees and grasses. Mr. Young plans to dig up red bud, maple, oak and other young shade trees, and hole them in for future use by the City, Highway Department or private individuals for beautifying the town and community later in the season.

Workmen will be paid by the Red Cross in grocery or clothing rations, and part of the cost defrayed from the sale of such shrubs and trees as may be saved from the two cemeteries.

Rev. A. C. Rudloff, of the local Baptist church, is responsible largely for the plan of cleaning up the Miner cemetery tract. Each dollar raised by Rev. Rudloff and his committee will be matched dollar for dollar by Red Cross for the latter project. A total of $22 had been collected by Thursday morning. Contributions for cleaning up this 2-acre plot of ground are being received by W. W. Widdows, farmer living near the Miner cemetery, and by Rev. Rudloff here in Sikeston. Work is to start Monday morning at 8 o'clock weather permitting.

Since starting the work plan of relieving unemployment, Chairman C E. Brenton has received much encouragement and assistance from the City and from the Sikeston Special Road District. The latter will provide a limited amount of work sanding a strip of gumbo road, half the labor expense to be carried by the Road District and half by the Red Cross Chapter. A similar plan of providing work is being carried out as far as possible by the City.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pate of Anniston were visitors here Wednesday. They enjoyed a bob sled ride on the highway.

BEEKEEPING GENERALLY BEST ON ONE-MAN SCALE

The average beekeeper will make the most profit if he limits his business to 400 colonies, the number he can care for single-handed, the United States Department of Agriculture says. He may be a first-rate bee handler, but the temperament of a good beeman generally is not the temperament for managing employees efficiently.

One man can do practically all the work required for 350 or 400 colonies, even during rush seasons, the department learned by studying for three years the records of beekeepers in widely separated regions of the country. With an apiary of this size, however, he will need some additional means of income. Beekeeping is at its best, generally, as a supplement to farming. One man in New York State, who farms 100 acres and cares for 70 colonies of bees learned from experience that a 70-colony apiary is equivalent to about 40 acres of land in both income and labor.

One beekeeper, who spends little time in his apiary and is an inefficient employer of labor, had a labor cost of more than $6 per colony. He lost 53 cents a colony one year, and $1.75 a colony the next year. But not all good beemen are poor managers.

The Baptist minister had been summoned to the bedside of the Methodist woman who was very ill. As he went up the walk he met the little daughter and said to her: "I am very glad that your mother remembered me in her illness. Is your minister out of town?

"No", answered the child. "He's at home, but we thought it might be something contagious and we didn't want to expose him to it".—Swiped.

The boy with no schooling has one chance in 150,000 of performing distinguished service; with elementary education he has four times a chance; with high school education he has 87 times the chance; with college education 800 times the chance.

MAKE TAX REFUND OF $1619 THIS WEEK

One point of dispute and hard feeling in the Municipal Light Plant discussion was removed at least tentatively this week, when a tax refund amounting to $1619 was made from the City Clerk's office.

The amount was divided among taxpayers who had paid their taxes for 1930 prior to a Council order revoking a special assessment of 55 cents to defray interest on light plant bonds. All other taxpayers will pay the customary rate of $1.10 as heretofore.

J. C. Lawless, who lives five miles south of Poplar Bluff, pleaded guilty in circuit court yesterday, to a charge of common assault and was fined $100 and costs. Lawless was arrested after he had brutally beaten a 13-year-old girl, whom he was caring for as a ward of the county. The child had been obtained by him, from the county detention home. She was removed from his custory and taken back to the home.—Poplar Bluff Republican

If "every dog has his day", the dog days in August and September will have to annex a few extra days to take care of the various cases of "puppy love", soon to grow up.

Over in Budapest, the situation is stranger than fiction. The other day 2000 men marched on the jail at Kaposwar, demanding that they be imprisoned, as they preferred prison fare to starving.

O. Henry, the author, wrote stuff like that back in the latter part of the nineteenth century. "The Cop and the Anthem" seemed like an impossible story the time I read it, but now the Tombs would look good to any beggar.

If the Bastile in France was still standing, the modern version of the Fall of the Bastile would be painful to the historians of that time.

News of such things as unemployment and the plague—er gulp—I mean panic, makes us tighter on lending out the old family soup bone. It still had a little marrow in it during Cleveland's time, so we fared pretty good, but we had to vanish it the other day to preserve it through such hard usage.

It's left up to Wickersham's report on prohibition to force an extra session of Congress after March 4. I was afraid the Congressman would have to go home before long, but leave it to Wickersham to lose a lot of good newspaper space that could be used to run a good murder story.

Probably Wickersham is trying to decide whether the eighteenth amendment is constitutional, or just another law.

I insist that bootlegging is helpful to the unemployment situation. Look, Friends, Romans and Countrymen at the men that are required to make the varnish, lye, iodine, carbolic acid, quinine, creosote, old socks, soap and the other ingredients that are needed for our Christmas liquor.

By the papers I note that some of the railway companies are adopting the two-cent coach fare rate, that is: Something like two-cents for each mile you travel.

I'm afraid it's a catch like these penny sales you run on to now and then, you have to buy about two dollars' worth to get your penny to working.

Perhaps like a quarter-cent-a-point bridge.

These philosophers are queer fellows, take Omar Khayyam. He was a tent maker until one of his former associates gave him a job as court astronomer for the Big Shot in Persia, then Omar started in making quite a bit of antiquated whoopee.

Now there is a shoe cobbler who has crashed the portals of publicity in Northampton, Mass. He was the guy who was political advisor of ex-President Calvin Coolidge.

I suspect that he was the man who told him to be "cool", the best advice that anybody could have given him.

Oklahoma is probably the only State in the union who thinks well of hitch-hikers. They elected their governor by one of the largest majorities the State has known. It is interesting to know that he hitch-hiked while making his gubernatorial race.

Andy Payne, another favorite son, ran over the Nation to get recognition for his State.

Will Rogers ran over the Nation and everybody concerned, for Oklahoma.

These boys from the Indian Territory are go-getters.

Find College Students Are Not Bad Now. This would be dandy to slip in the next letter touching the old man. This survey made by the Federal office of education will knock dead some of those "when-I-went-to-school boys".

Charlie Paddock is married and is writing for newspapers and magazines. But alackaday, Charlie's sprinting days are just beginning.

"Well, my boy", growled the village cynic to the newly wedded boy, who stood before him, wreathed in smile. "You are at the end of your troubles".

The boy smiled more in gratitude for the compliment.

On seeing this, the cynic added, "The front end".

The smile faded.

The most miserable task in the course of time is writing a letter from your fathers' dictation, in which he asks the dean of your college to put you to work.

I am wondering who gets the education when a young fellow goes to college—his parents or the young man?

Now comes the story of the guy that read the "Art of Make-up" so that he might patch up a misunderstanding with his lady friend.

One of the favorite comedy teams of the pre-Prohibition days, according to the old-timers, were "Tom and Jerry". It seems as how these two memorable fellows used to be responsible for several of the local puns.

According to the way the barber trade is falling off, our fair village will soon look like the Gillette Boys back home on a vacation.

A college boy in Turkey would naturally go harem-scarem.

Face lotions have been going down since the coming of prohibition.

Five Persons Killed in Peru After Grid Game. The Peruvian-Uruguayan football game was one where everybody concerned took the advice of "fight until hell freezes over" literally. The theme song wasn't "Just a Little Closer", it was too blooming close as it was.

On finishing J. P. McEvoy's "Mister Noodle", I'd suggest that he drag out the "Show Girl" because his collection of telegrams, letters, cutting from Variety, leters from home, column paragraphs, and wise cracks would work better with Dixie Dugan.

We view with alarm the decreasing number of bald-headed barbers.

Slants on the Immorals, ala McIntyre and Ripley:

Did you know that spinach was first raised by George Sand, I didn't.. Rex Carrs has a mole on his left shoulder blade..Did you know that even King Caunte couldn't read Old English, and never saw any....That black magic hasn't any color....That Rin-Tin-Tin's salary always goes to the dogs....Houdini's best trick was escaping gracefully from an average dress suit....That Kublai Khan first played Polo, Marco Polo pretty heavily.....What was it Port said? Did Pompey? I wonder what has become of Julius Caesar, Omar Khayyam, John Barleycorn, Mike Mulligan, "Sweet Geneveive", and quails? ....Did you know that cockroaches could be classed among cannibals? Did the Egyptians call Mark Anthony a wop?

Sign in a restaurant: Mary had a little lamb, what will you have? I've found out why they call that famous resort in Mexico Agua Caliente, meaning "Hot Water". It's because Hot Water and the soft soap they use works so well together....What is becoming of the bald-headed barbers, and old mug cases advertising the shop through the class of the clientel.....People with two faces should have to pay double for massages and plastic surgery or would we be face lifting....We find now various people bothered with that recently discovered aiment, known as Hooveritis, caused by too strenuous use of such objects d'appetites as turnips soup and water. The only possible cure is a change of administration, several people are awaiting cure along about 1932.

The first woman Eve was so named probably because her arrival brought on an end of Adam's perfect day.

First Ant, on cracker box: "What's your hurry?"

Second Ant: "Can't you read? It says, "Tear along this edge".

The Sikeston recently married man who slept on a bookcase one night, says he is through with futuristic furniture "from now on".

One might remark that the furniture had the edge on him that time.

A local shop in trying to collect, received the following letter from one much distressed:

"Dear Sir: I have many many bills to settle, so each week I put them all in a hat and draw out one, which I pay. It may be your turn next week, but no more of your threats or I won't put you in the raffle".

That ought to satisfy any banker.

RED CROSS EXPENDS NEARLY $230,000 IN ARKANSAS TO RELIEVE DROUTH VICTIMS

St. Louis, January 10.—Drouth sufferers in Arkansas have received about $230,000 this week from the mid-western area headquarters of the Red Cross. A new grant of $36,200 was announced last night.

Other dispensations announced last night were $600 to Missouri, bringing the State total to $36,700, and $4000 to Texas, which heretofore had received no aid. The amounts are in addition to funds spent by local chapters.

All 75 counties of Arkansas have received aid from the Red Cross, Wm. G. Baxter, Jr., manager of the mid-western area, said.

Many farmers cut brush in summer or early fall because they think it is not likely to sprout again if cut at these times, but it is just as effective to cut it in winter. There will always be some second and even third growth regardless of when it is cut.

Cold-storage eggs may be used quite as satisfactorily as fresh eggs for most cooking purposes in the household. Where economy must be practiced, the tendency is to use fewer fresh eggs during the winter months, because of the advance in price. The less expensive cold-storage eggs help to keep up the supply of this necessary food.

BOYCE EQUIPMENT CO. WILL CELEBRATE McCORMICK DAY

Something new and still a century old will be exhibited in Sikeston Jan-uary 20 as part of a Centennial Cele-bration. Boyce Farm Equipment Co made arrangements with the Interna-tional Harvester Company of Ameri-ca to place on exhibition a replica of the world's first reaper. In rounding out the most marvelous hundred years in all history, 1931 brings the cen-tenary of the reaper. The world may well honor the inventor of the ma-chine that ushered in a new era of agriculture, of progress and of free-dom from humanity's age long en-salvement to the soil.

On that July day in 1831, when, in a Virginia wheat field, young Cyrus Hall McCormick, then 22 years old gave the world its first successful reaper, began the liberation of the farmer from the grinding toil that yielded such scanty returns. Then and there dawned the Age of Plenty, a golden age, unshadowed by the spectre of ever-present hunger and ever-dreaded famine.

After the reaper, if not directly from it, came the long line of ma-chines whereby agriculture has been changed from the sheerest drudgery to the greatest of all industries. These machines have conquered the wilder-ness and desert, built new empires, founded new civilizations, set millions of men free to create new industries, converted yesterday's luxury into to-day's common place comfort.

This old reaper, the forerunner of the new agricultural implements, con-tained seven basic principles still in use on the present type grain harv-ester. These may be listed as

1. The straight knife with ser-rated edge and reciprocal or vibrat-ing motion which cuts the grain.

2. Fingers or guards extending from the platform to prevent the grain from slipping sideways while being cut.

3. The revolving reel which holds the grain against the knife and lay the cut stalks on the platform.

4. Platform behind the knife for receiving the cut grain and holding it until raked off.

5. The master wheel which car-ries most of the weight of the ma-chine and, through ground traction furnishes power to operate the reel and knife.

6. Forward draft from the right or stubble side by means of shafts.

7. A divider on the left side to separate the grain to be cut from that to be left standing.

DEXTER MAKES BID FOR WILL MAYFIELD COLLEGE

An offer for the removal of Will Mayfield Junior College from Marble Hill to Dexter has been made to the Board of Trustees of the Baptist School by the Chamber of Commerce of Dexter. While the amount of fi-nancial assistance which would be given was not divulged, it is said that an inducement was offered.

The proposal was made here at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the college, but no definite action was taken.

Dr. Ray E. York, executive secre-tary of the board, is to visit Dexter in the near future and discuss the pro-posal with residents there.

J. W. Jeffries has resigned as presi-dent of Will Mayfield, it was an-nounced, but will remain atached to the school as field representative.

The school, it has been announced, will suspend operations today, due to financial difficulties. Suspension will be temporary, however, it is said.

THOSE WHO KNOW THEIR SAUSAGE WILL ATTEND

If one is partial to country sau-sage, or if one happens to have made sausages a particular study or hobby, it will be of vital interest to learn of the Russell-Bradley supper to be held at the Missouri Utilities Office the evening of January 24.

Plates of country sausage, hot bis-cuits and butter served with a dash of applesauce are to be sold at the nominal price of 25 cents. Egg to order will call for another nickle.

NEGRO BURNED FOR CRIME AT RURAL SCHOOL

Maryville, January 12.—Chained to the roof of the Garrett rural school in which he was alleged to have as-saulted and murdered Miss Velma Colter, 19 year old teacher, Raymond Gunn, negro, was burned to death by a mob which made a funeral pyre of the building today.

Gunn was marched into the school house and to the spot where the bruised body of the young teacher was discovered. Those of the throng about him, who were closets, said the negro confessed his guilt.

He was then taken to the roof of the building. He was placed across the ridge-pole. Holes were chopped in the roof and gasoline opured over the floors and on the walls. A mem-ber of the mob applied a match.

The above speaks for itself and few comments are necessary. The same sort of justice should be meted out to any man, white or black, who commits such a crime, provided the evidence is conclusive. Here was a black negro who had served a short term in the penitentairy for assault-ing a young white woman who was a pupil of the Teachers' College at Maryville, returns to the same com-munity, strips naked, assaults and kills a teacher. The avenging of the crime was terrible, but just.

BANK AT SMITHVILLE, MO., CLOSES AFTER SLOW RUN

Smithville, Mo., January 14.—The Bank of Smithville, succumbing to a slow run of a year's duration, was closed yesterday afternoon by order of its directors. The officers report-ed to the board that they had no cash on hand.

The closing affects about 2000 de-positors with $418,000 in deposits The bank listed in its balance sheet December 10, loans amounting to $436,000. Some resentment was ex-pressed at an alleged whispering campaign that resulted in withdraw-als totaling more than $100,000 in the last year. Rumors were alleged to have been spread by those who al-read had borrowed their limit and had been refused loans from the bank.

The closing leaves the town with-out a bank. Smithville is in Clay County, about 19 miles north of Kan-sas City.

Contrary to many beliefs, Dr. G F. Kunz, of the American Museum of Natural History, believes that there is no planet life in the universe other than that on our earth. He bases his idea on 850 meteorities which he has examined after they had fallen on the earth. Thirty-one of 87 known el-ements have been found in these bod-ies.

Some choice varieties of evergreens which do not come true from seed may easily be propagated in green-houses during the winter. Among these are varieties of arbor vitate, boxwood, juniper, retinospora, yew and others. The wood for the cut-ting is usually in good condition af-ter a few light frosts have checked the growth and it has ripened. Cut-tings may be made at any time up to midwinter with good results. Do not cut or handle the wood while it is frozen. The vigorous branches on the sides and near the tops of the trees furnish the best wood for cut-tings.

THIS WEEK IN MO. HISTORY

Imprisonment for debt in Missouri was abolished by act of the General Assembly, approved January 17, 1843, a date which occurs during this week.

Governor Thomas Reynolds, during whose administration (1840-44) this law was passed, was instrumental in obtaining relief for the oppressed debtor. T. Berry Smith, in a bio-graphy of Reynolds, gives this sketch of the Governor's attitude:

"The one issue....which appealed to him most strongly, was that per-taining to imprisonment for debt. With all his might and persistence he urged the enactment of a law forbid-ding such procedure; and though the creditor class of the State were against him, yet he finally triumph-ed".

It took the people of Missouri 36 years of legislative action to divorce themselves from the idea that a de-btor should not be imprisoned for not paying his debts. The first law on debt was passed in 1807 in the Terri-tory of Louisiana, which comprised what is now Missouri. This law, which imposed imprisonment for the insol-vent debtor, was amended twice be-fore Missouri became a State.

Not until 1835 was a comprehensive law enacted for the protection of the debtor. In this year, an act was drawn up which described an involved court procedure through which the in-solvent debtor was forced to go if he would avoid prison. It was this law to which Gov. Reynolds referred when he denounced the "enormous expense" of seeking freedom through court pro-cedure.

In 1841, the bankrupt law was re-vised so that "any debtor imprisoned for debt may apply to the courts, of-fering to deliver all property to his creditors, except wearing apparel for himself and family and ask for the benefits granted by the law of 1835".

Shortly after Governor Reynold's official denunciation of the debt laws in 1842, Thomas B. Hudson of the House, and Benjamin P. Major of the Senate, introduced bills in the Legis-lature on this subject. The Senate bill was passed by that body Decem-ber 14, 1842, but the House bill was harrassed by amendment and detain-ed in committee for several weeks. On January 17, 1843, however, the bill was finally approved.

A report of Representative An-drew Alexander's speech before a committee hearing on the debt bill, is fairly indicative of the sentiment of Missourians on debt imprisonment in 1843. He said: "I came here..pledg-ed to wipe from our statute book that relica of barbarian law....that foul blot upon the history of Democratic Missouri. I wish Mr. Chairman, to divorce the unfortunate debtor from the felon."

The old debt laws were not without their amusing aspects. The Jeffer-son City Times of October 1, 1889, quotes a document just then discover-ed in St. Louis, dated September 18, 1822, which ordered the imprisonment of Thomas H. Benton, Missouri's great statesman, should he fail to pay a debt.

The order, issued to a constable, demanded the public sale of Benton's property to meet a debt of only sixty-five dollars and forty-two cents. "And for want of sufficient distress", the order reads, "you are commanded to take the body of the said Thomas H. Benton in custory and convey him to the common jail of the county; the sheriff and keeper whereof is hereby required to receive and him safely keep until the said debt and costs be fully paid, or the said Thomas H. Benton be otherwise discharged ac-cording to law...."

That the great Missouri Senator did not treat the order with impunity, is testified by the frief endorsement on the back of the order: "Paid.

S. BLOOD, Constable".

OLIVE OIL, ANCIENT FOOD, HIGHLY VALUED TODAY

When the houseife uses olive oil in preparing her company dinner, she can be assured of the sanction of the ancients as well as of the protection afforded her by the Federal Food and Drug Administration in its enforce-ment of the pure food laws.

Olive oil, one of our oldest foods, is still one of the most esteemed. It was a common food thousands of years before Columbus discovered America, and references to it made in the Old Testament and other early literature. The Greeks used olive oil for food, lighting and sacramental purposes. Homer was not blind to its merits and referred to it in his Iliad as a luxury of the wealthy, priz-ed highly for its value in the heroic toilet. The warriors of Homer's day annointed themselves with oil after the bath and, by 776 B. C., an olive wreath was the victor's prize in the Olympic games.

When madam goes to the store for olive or other salad oils, she should read the labels on the containers care-fully in order to distinguish between the different types, says W. B. White, of the Food and Drug Administra-tion's food-control office. Sometimes vegetable oils, such as cottonseed oil, are mixed with olive oil. But a care-ful reading of the label will enable the buyer to find this out. A housewife who wants pure olive oil should not be satisfied with a cottonseed oil-olive oil mixture. There are many good edible oils on the market—it is simply up to madam to decide which kind she wants and then read the la-bels to make sure that she gets it.

Remember?

Remember 'way back when you were a litle girl here in Sikeston and the boys of your acquaintance used to talk about what they'd be when they grew up? For a while, the preferance would run to firemen, railway engineers, and such.....and then one lad would say, "Guess I'll run dad's store", and another would re-mark, "I'm gonna have a drug store, just like pop". These boys grew up and stepped into their father's shoes. They stayed here in Sikeston. You probably married one of them.

What about your boy? Will he have a grocery store or a shoe store or a drug store or a dry goods store to run like his dad before him? Or will these stores.....when he reaches manhood.....be run by managers appointed by a home office a thousand miles away..... will your boy be forced to migrate to New York or Chicago to look for a job.....AWAY FROM HOME?
It all depends upon whether our independently managed stores re-main. It all depends on you buyers....you mothers.

We want the grown folks to be sure to come and bring your children with you.

We are in great and urgent need of someone to come and play the piano for us. Also, will gladly welcome musicians with their musical instruments at every service. We will offer good inducements to someone to furnish music for us at every service. See me about it at once.

THE MULE

The mule he is a funny sight,
He's made of ears and dynamite.
He has a lovely voice to sing,
And makes a noise like everything.
Some folks treat mules with disrespect—
They say they have no intellect;
The mule he tends to his own "biz",
He don't look loaded, but he is.
On mules we find two legs behind,
And two we also find before,
We stand behind, before we find
What the two behind be for.
When we're behind the two behind,
We quickly find what these be for,
So stand before the two behind,
And stand behind the two before.

DRAG LINE CLAIMS LIFE OF YOUNG MAN, 32

Charleston, January 8.—Jimmie Sheppard, 23, was killed at 9:30 o'clock this morning when he fell while oiling the engine of a drag line working on the Mississippi County spillway near Brewers' Lake and his body was horribly mangled by the cable of the drag line.

Sheppard, whose home is in Cunningham, Ky., is believed to have slipped while he was oiling the engine. As he fell against the cable, he reached for the engine to steady himself, but his hand caught the throttle, throwing it wide open and the rapidly traveling cable cut his body to pieces.

Sheppard had been working for the J. J. McCaughey Company, which is building a portion of the spillway, for the past three years. He has been on that job for a year and he and his wife had been living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Nelson on Brewer's Lake. Mrs. Sheppard was visiting relatives in Charleston when the accident occurred.

Besdies his wife, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Sheppard of Cunningham, Ky., four sisters, Misses Bernice, Jony, Oiny and Bonnie May, and five brothers Lawrence, who was employed on the job with him, Thomas, Gib, Dallas and Henry Lee, all of Cunningham.

The body was prepared for burial by the Lair Undertaking Company and will be taken to Cunningham for buria.

TOM DODGE SAYINGS IN MILAN STANDARD

Maybe the reason why the old family album went out of style in homes was because the truth was beginning to hurt.

About the only time a small boy likes to have a cake of soap in his hands is on Hallowe'en.

Dents in the back of a car don't necessarily indicate that the owner is a careful driver. He may be a careless backer.

Wonder what ever became of the old-fashioned man who always carried his chewing gum beneath the lapel of his coat.

Maybe the reason some people do not believe in hell is because there are so many substitutions for it right here on earth.

Married life would be more of a success if so many women don't think their husbands got better wives than they deserved.

The happiest men are the ones who always live up to the law and down to their incomes.

Of course Adam and Eve led a primitive kind of life but they at least had this advantage—they never went into debt on account of trying to keep up with their neighbors.

Heaven for a pedestrian will probably be a place where all vehicles will have square wheels.

A good paint job will make anything look good as new except a woman who has passed fifty years.

Nothing could be any more dangerous this day in time than an "oiled" motorists driving on an oiled road.

The principal difference between a regular goat and a Wall Street goat is that the former knows how to use its head.

One domestic tragedy that no longer occurs to husbands is that of getting a hand tightly stuck in a lamp chimney while cleaning it.

If Sampson were living today and tried to get away with two columns he'd find that he had to pay the regular advertising rate for them.

It is all right to put your best foot forward, unless you put in on the foot of somebody else.

About the only time some women listen to what their husband has to say is when he talks in his sleep.

Another popular method of farm relief is filing a $200 claim with a railroad that has killed a $50 cow.

THIS WOMAN HAD TWINS BORN IN ELECTION DAY

A woman at the Frisco depot a few days ago stood in front of the ticket window holding two babies in her arms. She was frantically trying to get to her purse to buy a ticket.

An obliging taxi driver standing near offered to take one of the babies.

"Are these babies twins", he asked the woman.

"Yes", she replied. "They were born on election day and we named one Smith and the other Hoover".

Having secured her ticket she relieved him of the baby.

"Well, I guess I was holding the one named Smith", he said, as he walked away.—West Plains Gazette.

NEW BABY BEEF BULLETIN

Co-operative experiments in calf feeding conducted at Sni-A-Bar Farms, Grain Valley, by these farms the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Missouri Experiment Station have resulted in the development of a new and cheaper method of producing fat baby beef, now in great demand by the American meat consuming public. The result of the experiment is reported in the U. S. D. A. technical bulletin No. 208. A few copies of this bulletin are available for free distribution through the Missouri College of Agriculture.

The experiment deals with methods of fatening calves by the use of creeps, while they are suckling their dams. Spring calves were started on feed when approximately 10 weeks old and fed grain in creeps until weaning time. The results show that wellbred calves which had received grain in creeps weighed approximately 550 pounds at weaning time, or 100 pounds more than similar calves which had not received grain. The grain fed calves were valued at or close to the top of the lightweight cattle market.

Chillicothe—T. R. Jones opened roller skating rink on first floor of Masonic Temple building formerly occupied by Summerville grocery store

The dried fruits—prunes, dates raisins, figs, peaches and apricots—make fine wholesome confections either just as they are or stuffed or chopped up and made into candy. For instance, put through the meat grinder half a pound each of prunes and figs, or figs and seedless raisins, with half a pound of nuts, using a medium knife. Mix together and shape into small balls, rolls, or any other desired shape. Roll in confectioner's sugar and pack in waxed paper in a tin box.

CHAMPION GROWER USES HILL DROP PLANTER

Raising 998 pounds of lint cotton an acre won the championship of Drew County, Arkansas for W. Pace last season. This crop was planted with the hill drop planter, owners of which in other sections have reported perfect stands and increased yields with this newer method. With this planter, cotton seed may be dropped in hills of as many or as few seed as dseired. The group of seeds when dropped are not wadded but deposited over a space of three or four inches. The planters are available for planting either one row or two rows at a time. Nearly half the quantity of seed is saved as compared to older methods and the time for chopping or thinning is reduced two-thirds or more and in many cases this practice which often requires 20 hours or more of man labor an acre may be entirely eliminated. On 20 acres at least thirty days' time is saved which could be spent to advantage in the garden or growing feed for the livestock.

Excelsior Springs—Snow fences being erected in Clay County.

Jamesport—Messler Oil and Gas Company of Kansas City, Kansas, seeks leases on land in this vicinity with view to drilling for oil and natural gas.

BOTHWELL'S TOMB VIOLATED, PERHAPS BY JEWELL THIEVES

Copenhagen, Denmark, January 7.—The rifling of the sarcophagus of the Earl of Bothwell, third husband of Mary, Queen of Scots, is under investigation.

Police yesterday found the sarcophagus, containing the body of the Earl who died insane in a castle in Zealand on April 14, 1578, broken open and its contents disarranged.

The authorities refuse to discuss the possible motive. It has been reported that jewels belonging to Queen Mary were buried in Bothwell's tomb. There was no evidence that any jewels were found by the disturbers or indeed that anything of great value was buried with Bothwell.

Mary Stuart, daughter of James V of Scotland, married the French dauphin who ruled briefly as Francis II. On his death she returned to Scotland and, becoming Queen, married Lord Darnley. who was murdered, some believ, by Bothwell with Mary's connivance. At any rate, the Scottish nobles rebelled when she married Bothwell. He fled to Norway. She obtained a divorce from Rome. Mary subsequently fell into the hands of Elizabeth of England. She was tried for plotting to take the throne of England and beheaded at Fotheringay castle in 1587.

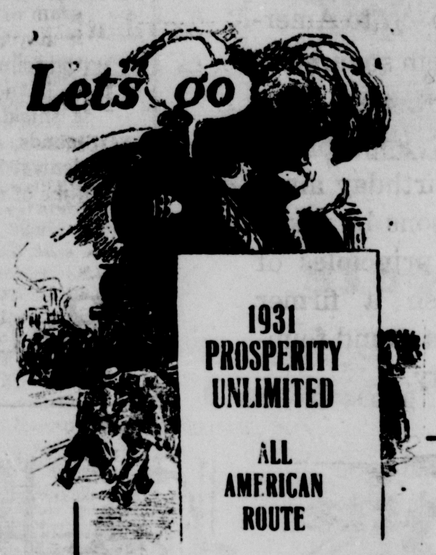
IT'S A COLD WINTER IN UTAH: SALT LAKE FREEZES

Salt Lake City, Utah, January 7.—Great Salt Lake, one of the saltiest bodies of water in the world, has succumbed to the cold. Ice was found on the lake yesterday for the first time in the history of the weather bureau.

A. B. Burton, geological survey engineer, reported he found ice a quarter of an inch thick, beginning at the shore and extending out 1000 feet.

The lake water is approximately 23 per cent solid.

Edina—Farmers' Supply Co. store enlarged and improved.



ANOTHER Girder Is Fitted Into Place

We purposely placed the emphasis on the word "ANOTHER" for in a measure it sums up the secret of continued prosperity . . . Another train load of grain goes to market—another stretch of paving is begun—another employee broke the individual production record—another factory working to capacity—another hundred men added to the force—another and another right down the line and the answer is, prosperity, UNLIMITED.

Let's all work together and insure the prosperity of our city, our state, our country, a program which can result in the prosperity of the individual. Let's plant another acre—build another house—pave another street, buy from your local independent grocers, in other words let's use the ALL AMERICAN ROUTE and go to Contentmentville, the safe, sure way.

PARAGRAPHS FROM THE MONROE COUNTY APPEAL

Press dispatches warn the public to look out for counterfeit stocks. But what is the difference between a counterfeit stock and a genuine stock that has no value, like most of those a gullable public bought when the frenzy was on?

What is the largest American industry in the volume of investment and business? No, you are wrong; it is not the steel industry, the oil industry or the automobile industry. It is the printing and publishing industry. Yet, with all its money and with all its power, this industry hasn't sufficient influence with Congress to induce it to make the Government quit competing with every printing office in the nation.

The kidnapping of that little Busch boy in St. Louis last Thursday calls renewed attention to the need for making short shrift of scoundrels who commit this crime. They should be forced to trial within ten days of their arrest. If convicted, the higher courts should be required to drop everything and give decisions within 30 days if appeals are taken. Everywhere the penalty should be death and it should be inflicted so promptly that the crime, now becoming a favorite in our large cities, would lose some of its attractions.

We confess to bewilderment at the Farm Board's discrimination between animals on the farm and human beings on the farm. It is willing to furnish money with which to buy feed for the animals but will not supply so much as a red cent with which to buy food for the farmer and his family when need of that sort exists, as it does in so many farming communities. Is this further evidence that we live in an era when the dollar, or a thing that brings in the dollar, is exalted above the body, mind and soul of a man, woman or child?

The public owes a bigger debt of gratitude to town and city community chests that it really appreciates. Except that these funds, amounting in the aggregate to a billion dollars, were standing between the unemployed and starvation, there would be such an era of riot, pillage and crime as this nation has never known. Nothing makes men more desperate than their own empty stomachs and the cries of hungry wives and children. Nothing can restrain them under such circumstances, for self-preservation is the first law of nature. Fortunately, the community chest had already become an established institution. All that was needed for the present emergency was proper understanding and the generous response American people always give in time of need. While Government relief measures were of an impracticable nature, those formualted by towns and cities are functioning like clockwork. If anybody is suffering from hunger and cold it is because his wants are not known.

HAY, NOT MANNA, FALLS FROM SKIES FOR ALASKA DEER

The miracle of the manna which fell from Heaven upon the Israelites was repeated recently in Alaska, with a starving herd of deer as the beneficiaries.

Instead of manna, however, the astounded deer saw two bales of hay come tumbling out of the skies every day to furnish food on a barren seashore, according to the American Game Protective Association.

The deer had been driven out of their native forests by an unseasonable snow which hid their food, and sought refuge on the seashore. Here they were on the verge of starvation until the citizens of Juneau and several other towns collected a fund with which to pay an aviator for several trips to the herd.

On each trip the pilot carried a bale of hay on each side of the plane, dropping them overboard beside the deer. The "miracle" is being continued until the deer are able to find natural food in their native forests.

Missouri is first of all States for the number and excellence of opportunities in dairying.

Never put wet shoes on a radiator or stove to dry. Stuff them with crumpled paper or fill them with dry oats, and put them in a warm, not hot, place. High temperatures cau. leather to grow brittle and crack.

The wet bloc should not forget, in the midst of its other activities, to bring to the attention of Congress that by making a simple change in the Volstead law it can at once put 77,364 men back at work, give the farmers a new market for $87,520,827 worth of their products, bring $79,329,000 into the Federal Treasury without raising the income or any other existing tax by one cent, and furnish profitable employment for capital in the amount of $840,681,000 All this could be accomplished by the legalization of beer.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

Pioneer of a new age, prophet of modern times, Benjamin Franklin has been called "the man who lived before his day". Surely the life of no other single individual has been crammed so full of achievement in so many and diverse fields. Washington regarded him as the new nation's foremost statesman. In the fields of diplomacy, letters, science and business, Franklin had few peers. But it is as the philosopher of the "homely virtues" that Franklin has most endeared himself to America. The sound maxims of thrift and wisdom so humanly set forth in his Almanc expound the practical common sense of a practical land. Singularly appropriate is it on the occasion of Franklin's 225th birthday anniversary this month that these homely lessons be taken to heart. The practice of those elemental principles of saving and of thrift cannot fail to establish a firmer sense of values. Their observance will lay a sound foundation for a permanent return to Prosperity.

Saturday THRIFT DAY...

The greatest assurance of personal independence is money in the bank. It is concrete—it it as nearly infallible as anything can be. Hence a Savings Account consistently enlarged forms the logical basis of a program of thrift. As capital grows it may be wisely invested but the foundation of solvency must lie in the Savings Account. It is a shield against unexpected demands, such as illness or accident, it is the one sure friend in time of need.
